4-POWER ACTION FOR WORLD PEACE PROPOSED BY DUCE

Italian Premier's Plan Based on Collaboration of Italy, Germany, France and England 'To Promote Better Feeling.'

M'DONALD TO TELL OF PLAN TO PARIS

British Minister and Simon Will Stop En Route Home To Submit Idea to French.

ROME, March 19.—(AP)—A "Mussolini plan" to assure an era of world peace was studied in conferences of the Italian premier with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, and his foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, over the week-end, an official communique said today.

Premier MacDonald and Sir John, who had gone to Geneva to break a stalemate in the world disarmament conference, came to Rome Saturday for conferences with Premier Mussolini. While at Geneva Mr. MacDonald offered a new plan for disarmament.

The "Mussolini plan" is based on collaboration of the four European powers, France, Germany, England and Italy, described as founded on the spirit of the Kellogg treaty and an international agreement to outlaw war.

The communique said the British statesmen would leave Rome tomorrow, going home by way of Paris, where they will submit the project to the French government.

Official Statement.

The official statement said:

"After a full and exhaustive exchange of ideas on the general situation, the ministers examined in these conversations on project for an understanding on larger political questions put forward by the head of the Italian government, with the object of securing collaboration of the four western powers in an effort to promote, in the spirit of the Kellogg pact and a 'no force' declaration, a long period of peace for Europe and the world."

The "no force" agreement mentioned in the text refers to a declaration signed at Geneva by Great Britain, Germany, France and Italy last December 11 indorsing a principle of simultanous equality of status for Germany and security for France. The United States signed a part of the agreement."

It was this agreement which induced Germany to return to the world disarmament conference after she had withdrawn.

Italian officials said the French and German governments have been kept fully informed of the conversations and already have received copies of Signor Mussolini's project, which they now were studying.

Contents Not Divulged.

No indication was given as to the contents of the project, but it was officially stated that Il Duce had prepared it before Mr. MacDonald arrived.

It is based on a speech by the Italian premier at Turin last October 23 in which he said collaboration of the four western powers furnished the only means for securing permanent peace in Europe.

The communique did not mention Mr. MacDonald's disarmament plan.

British officials said the premiers did not discuss the MacDonald plan

Deadline Extended On Hoarding of Gold

CHICAGO, March 19.—(AP)—Notification that the federal reserve board has extended until March 27 the deadline for the return of hoarded gold was received today by officials of the seventh federal reserve district from Washington. The original time limit for redeposit of the metal expired last Friday night, but officials announced they would accept it without penalty until further notice.

Today's telegram was regarded as setting a definite deadline. The telegram followed:

"The federal reserve board has extended until March 27 the final date in regards to gold. It is requested that you prepare and forward to the board after March 27 as complete as can be made from banks in your district a list of all persons who have withdrawn gold from banks since February 1, 1933, and who have not redeposited it in those banks by March 27, 1933."

OHIO VALLEY FLOOD TAKES FIVE LIVES; DAMAGE IS HEAVY

Highest Waters Since 1913 Inundate Area From West Virginia to Indiana; Cities Menaced.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 19.—(AP)—The worst flood since 1913 raged tonight through the Ohio river valley all the way from West Virginia to Indiana, accompanied by five deaths and property damage as thousands of acres of land were inundated.

The city of Portsmouth was threatened as the swollen waters beat against a wall protecting the city, and the mayor issued a proclamation warning the residents to be ready to flee. All highways leading into the city were inundated.

Thirty-five city blocks in Newport, Ky., were under water and the Ohio river, eight feet above flood stage, was still rising.

Adams, Pike, Jackson and Scioto counties, Ohio, were virtually cut off from the outside, and the residents of near-by Greenup, Ky., were abandoning their homes.

Hundreds of families in the Ohio valley were driven from their homes, and many were marooned. Rescuers in boats worked feverishly to carry them to safety.

The water poured down the main street of Manchester, Ohio, sweeping into business houses and homes. Hardin, Youngs and Otway in Scioto county were under several inches of water.

Three men drowned in Covington, Ky., when a wall of water swept their automobile into a creek. At Lawrenceburg, Ind., the death of 14-year-old Charles Stephens was attributed indirectly to the flood conditions. He found a bottle adrift, drank from it, suffered convulsions and died.

At California, Ky., Gale Thrig, 18, was killed when the skiff in which he and three other boys were cruising overturned near a water-logged power transformer.

The lower east end of Cincinnati was threatened with great damage as the waters of the little Miami river lashed at a protecting levee. Hundreds of men were put to work chopping the embankment away to permit the water to come in slowly. Distress was caused by high waters in

Auto-Train Collision Fatal to 5 Persons

NORTH MONSON, Mass., March 19.—(UP)—Five persons were killed here tonight when the automobile in which they were riding collided in a blinding snowstorm with "The Rocket," crack train of the Central Vermont railway.

The dead were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gagliano and their three children, Tony, 14; Frank, 9, and Eleonora, 8. Gagliano died instantly and the other victims died at Palmer hospital.

CONGRESS TO GET BILLS FOR RELIEF OF JOBLESS TODAY

Three Measures To Be Introduced; President Roosevelt To Speed Economy Program.

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt expects to begin wielding the economy ax just given him by congress before the end of the month.

He hopes to lop off $500,000,000 in expenditures as the big step toward balancing the budget which he regards as vital to the other economic legislative proposals he is forwarding to congress shortly.

The economy program is to include savings of about $280,000,000 in reduced veterans' compensations; $120,000,000 in lowered salaries; and $100,000,000 through government reorganization.

In addition, the president is counting on about $125,000,000 new revenue from the beer legislation and $150,000,000 from a renewal of the gasoline levy.

Preparing Permanent Program.

With this prospective $775,000,000 dent in the federal deficit, the president confidently is preparing a permanent recovery program including a gigantic public works employment proposal and railroad and banking reorganization.

He will send, meanwhile, an emergency proposal to congress this week aimed at giving 200,000 men jobs in a vast reforestation project. Marking this measure as "urgent," the president hopes to have congress finish work on the emergency phase of his program before the end of the week.

An entire new system of government salaries and veterans' allowances is being framed by his aides and will be ready for him within two or three days. He intends to put it into effect in all probability by the first of April.

Senator Wagner, of New York, the administration authority on employment, will start things going on unemployment relief with the introduction tomorrow of three bills.

These measures will provide for liberalization of the Reconstruction Corporation rules to permit immediate launching of a large-scale local construction program; the establishment of a nationally-co-ordinated, state-operated system of employment offices; and federal encouragement for establishment of unemployment insurance systems in the states.

Wagner Lauds Roosevelt.

Senator Wagner said "the electrifying leadership" of President Roosevelt had started a definite national recovery but "a solid understructure" now must be built.

Mr. Roosevelt is drafting a broad employment and relief proposal to be submitted later. It is believed to include suggestions made today by Wagner for initiation of a large, bonded federal public works program and the provision of "adequate relief against distress."

With the wheels of the executive and legislative branches of the new government busily whirling out the "new deal" program with almost unprecedented speed, Mr. Roosevelt relaxed today for about the first time in his two weeks at the White House.

He is ready to put forward his emergency employment proposal but probably will await house action on the farm bill, which is expected early this week.

He then will go ahead on his railroad, banking and public works proposals in rapid order and, with congressional leaders, he believes an adjournment of this congress may be reached by May 1. Administration of the new laws and attention to the complex international situation, however, will keep the new president busy for several weeks to come.

Nation's State Legislatures Thrusting Lance of Economy

By G. CORNWALL SPENCER.

CHICAGO, March 19.—(AP)—Deep into governmental costs, the nation's state legislatures are thrusting the lance of economy, slashing at budgets, performing amputations on appropriations.

One of the chief concerns of the assemblies, a survey today revealed, is to make a dollar do what entailed the expenditure of a dollar and a quarter—and even more—during the last biennium.

For example, Pennsylvania's legislature is studying a committee report recommending economies ranging from $13,000,000 to $21,000,000 below the $158,000,000 budget proposed by Governor Pinchot.

Across the continent, the California assembly's ways and means committee is seeking to cut by 15 per cent the administration's $258,700,000 biennial budget recommendation.

Wisconsin's senate expects to receive from committee on Wednesday an administration economy bill providing a $15,000,000 reduction in the biennial budget. Iowa legislators have approved 38 of 75 tax reduction bills—part of the $25,000,000 tax cutting program.

In other states:

Colorado—House expects to vote this week on numerous salary reduction measures after passing administration bill for reorganizing the state government.

Kansas—Ways and means committee hopes to reduce another million a $3,523,000 slash below 1931 figure of direct appropriations. Legislation pending for substantial salary reductions.

Indiana—New laws have consolidated 168 state departments into eight main divisions, reduced public officials' salaries and vested governor with power to cut number of state employes.

Maryland — Governor Ritchie's measures urging drastic cut in appropriations to reduce taxes in committee and expected to be voted on this week.

Missouri—Both houses considering numerous administration bills proposing economies through salary reductions and governmental consolidation.

Washington—Governor has ordered salary reductions of from 10 to 25 per cent and assembly has trimmed departmental appropriations approximately one-fourth below those of last biennium.

Illinois—Nearly 100 economy bills pending. Salary cuts expected to save about $3,000,000 between last February 1 and next July effected.

Several state assemblies—including Arizona and North Dakota—adjourned recently after enacting various retrenchment measures. Legislation anticipatory to federal legalization of beer is occupying the attention of others.

In Michigan, the retrenchment program, represented by an even 100 bills, was temporarily side-tracked by the banking emergency.

Zangara To Die Today For Murder of Cermak

Witnesses for Execution Summoned To Appear at Florida State Prison at 8:30 This Morning.

RAIFORD, Fla., March 19.—(AP) Giuseppe Zangara, the assassin, will pay the death penalty in the electric chair here at 9 a. m., tomorrow for the murder of Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago.

Witnesses for the execution have been summoned to appear at the state prison here at 8:30 a. m., tomorrow morning.

Sheriff Dan Hardie, of Dade county, where the Italian zealot shot Mayor Cermak and four other persons February 15 in attempting the assassination of President Roosevelt, is en route to the prison. He must be present at the execution.

Zangara spent a quiet day in his cell next to the execution chamber. He had no visitors except Superintendent L. F. Chapman, whose talk with the condemned man was casual.

Zangara made no requests except to ask for a chicken dinner. The man who said he tried to kill President Roosevelt because he had "beeg stomach pains" ate the meal heartily. While in the Dade county jail he had insisted on milk or eggs and ate very little, complaining about his stomach.

Today, Zangara either lay or sat on his cot in the small death cell while outside in the prison yard the first baseball game of the year between prison teams was played under a hot sun and attracted a large crowd of prison spectators.

Zangara had not been notified this afternoon that he is to die tomorrow.

Despite the early hour of the execution tomorrow there were no special preparations at the prison today.

No definite plans were made for disposition of Zangara's body after the execution. He has no relatives in this country so far as is known, and he has made no requests regarding his burial.

Governor Dave Sholtz at Tallahassee said several requests have been received from clinics and medical schools desiring to obtain the body for scientific purposes. He did not say what would be done about these requests.

Zangara's father lives near the town of Ferruzzano, Calabria, Italy, according to the condemned man's own story, told on the witness stand in the Miami court room.

Mayor Cermak died in Miami March 6 after a 19-day battle against his wound and subsequent complications. A coroner's verdict was that his death resulted from the bullet fired by Zangara from a cheap pawnshop pistol.

Besides Cermak, Zangara shot Mrs. Joe H. Gill, prominent Miami society woman, now recovering after a criti-

JAPS TAKE TOWN SOUTH OF WALL

Occupation of Sahochiao Designed To Halt Chinese Counter-Attacks.

TOKYO, March 20.—(Monday.)—(AP)—A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Hsifengkow today said that Major General Heijiro Hattori's brigade of Japanese infantrymen had made a lightning attack south of the Great Chinese Wall and had occupied Sahochiao, nine miles southwest of the important Hsifeng pass.

The operation was designed to end repeated Chinese counter-attacks at Hsifengkow, at which pass Japanese and Chinese troops for days have been engaged in bitter conflict, for the passageway controls a highway leading southwestward to Peiping.

The reports of Major General Hattori's foray beyond the Great Wall followed repeated reports that the Chinese feared such an incursion if the Japanese retained their hold on the pass in the wall, which forms the boundary between Jehol province and north China proper.

The Japanese apparently had succeeded in taking—or keeping—Hsifeng pass, since the Chinese were said by the Rengo correspondent to have abandoned all strong positions south of Hsifengkow and to have retreated southeastward along the Lwan river.

(Conflicting reports last week said that the Chinese held the pass and that the Japanese had occupied it after severe fighting.)

General Sung Cheh-yuan, commander of the 28th Chinese army, threw his entire command against the Japanese during the past week, the Rengo correspondent reported today, and attacked Hsifengkow daily, although Japanese leaders claimed their machine gun units had mowed down hundreds of the attacking troops.

More than a thousand Chinese bodies were left on the battlefield after days of fighting which preceded the occupation of Sahochiao, the reports said.

Other dispatches to vernacular newspapers reported a general Chinese retirement from positions hitherto maintained south of the Great Wall passes.

Rep. and Mrs. DeFore Hurt in Auto Mishap

MACON, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Coming back from the session of the state legislature, State Representative Walter DeFore and Mrs. DeFore were slightly injured tonight when their automobile skidded on the wet pavement near Bolingbroke, rolled over an embankment and came to a stop upside down.

The DeFores had difficulty in extricating themselves from the wreck. They were brought to a hospital here, where doctors found that they had received no broken bones. Then they were taken home. The car was badly damaged.

BARS LET DOWN FOR STATE BANKS

Unopened Federal Reserve Members Permitted To Pay 5 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—The treasury today authorized unopened state banks, members of the federal reserve, to permit withdrawals of amounts not exceeding 5 per cent of their deposits.

The formal announcement by Secretary Woodin follows:

"Any state banking institution which is a member of the federal reserve system and which is not licensed by the secretary of the treasury to reopen for the performance of usual banking functions, may, with the approval of the appropriate state authority having immediate supervision of such banking institutions, permit withdrawals by depositors and make payments to creditors of such percentage of the amounts due to them (not exceeding 5 per cent) as it may determine, provided that when or before the time of such withdrawls or payment, it shall make available for such purpose a fund for the benefit of and sufficient to pay all due depositors and creditors the percentage so determined.

"This regulation shall not in any way affect any right created by regulation number seven nor limit or restrict any payment thereby authorized. (Regulation number seven provides for reponing of new accounts to be placed in trust for 100 per cent withdrawal.)

"Any right to authorize withdrawals or payment under the terms of this regulation shall terminate upon the appointment of any conservator, receiver or other appropriate state official taking charge of the affairs of such banking institutions."

At the same time Secretary Woodin issued a regulation declaring that after the close of business on March 18, 1933, treasury regulations six and ten, as amended, shall be without force or effect.

The regulations specified concern withdrawals for the transportation of food and feed products, for the meeting of pay rolls and for the necessities of life.

It was explained unofficially that these regulations were repealed in order to conserve the assets of banks closed or under conservators. Officials feel, it was said, that with the number of banks now open sufficient funds are available to meet pay rolls and provide for the necessities of life.

Pope Pius Receives MacDonald, Simon

VATICAN CITY, March 19.—(AP) Pope Pius today received Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, in private audience.

The three chatted in the pontiff's private library for 35 minutes.

Rain To Usher in Spring Tonight; Hot Summer on Weather Cards

Last summer, you'll doubtless agree, was plenty hot, but the arrival of spring tonight at 7:43 o'clock, central standard time, is carded to usher in a six-month period just a little warmer.

Today there will be some more cool, cloudy weather, possibly some more showers, but Tuesday the sun will begin six months of shining more strongly on the northern half of the world than on the southern.

Experts call this season the "vernal equinox," but lay minds think of small onions, lighter clothes, bock beer, baseball and spring fever. The prophets say that just at 7:43 o'clock tonight an abnormally warm winter will come to an end, but—it will be succeeded by many days with higher temperatures than the average for years past.

This "vernal equinox" business means, the weather seers say, the time when the earth, circling around the sun, moves into such a position that the part north of the equator receives more heat and has longer days than the southern hemisphere.

The winter passing away tonight, they explain, continued the trend of abnormally warm winters that has been going on east of the Rocky mountains since 1905. Average temperatures during the official weather bureau winter (December, January and February) ranged from 1 to 9 degrees above the normal of 35 degrees in various sections. The March trend has been similar.

For one thing, a warm spring will be beneficial to ground crops, and Georgia farmers are planting them.

APPROVAL SEEN OF ECONOMY, BEER MEASURES TODAY

Leaders Confident Both Bills Will Be Ready for Roosevelt's Signature Before Nightfall.

By CECIL B. DICKSON.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—Congress resumes tomorrow the speedy pace set by the Roosevelt administration to put the finishing touches to budget balancing, beer and economy legislation before turning, in a more deliberate mood, to agriculture and state bank relief proposals.

Refreshed from a week-end respite after eight intensive and action-filled legislative days of the extra session, congress expects to send both the economy and beer bills to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature before nightfall.

Senate and house democratic leaders anticipated no difficulty in the adjustment of differences betwen the two branches on the Cullen beer bill. Only the signature of Vice President Garner remains to complete congressional action on the $500,000,000 economy measure. The vice president must sign the bill while the senate is in session.

Speaker Rainey and Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, democratic floor leader, predicted today a compromise on the beer measure that would be satisfactory to congress and to President Roosevelt. House conferees already have been appointed. Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, said he would ask for the appointment of senate conferees tomorrow as soon as that branch meets.

Beer Conference Early Today.

It is planned to hold an informal meeting of the conferees earlier in the day in a move to reach a tentative agreement on the senate amendments reducing the alcoholic content of the beer bill from 3.2 to 3.05 per cent; legalizing wine of 3.05 per cent and barring sale to persons under 16 years of age. The house went on record against all three.

Indications are that the house may recede from the higher alcoholic content and the senate from the other two amendments So confident of agreement was Senator Harrison that he predicted, "The bill will be signed tomorrow night."

This would mean that beer would become legalized on April 4, in states not having prohibitory laws. The bill is estimated to yield from $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 annually from the federal tax of $5 a barrel.

Pending action on the beer conference report tomorrow, the house will consider the Steagall bill to extend the benefits of the emergency banking act, passed on the first day of the special session, to banks outside of the federal reserve system. It is a substitute for the Robinson measure passed last week by the senate.

Opposition Seen.

Although Chairman Steagall, of the house banking committee, said it was favored by President Roosevelt, indications are that it will run into opposition headed by Representative Snell, of New York, the republican leader, who claims that banks which have refused to contribute to the federal reserve system should not have access to its benefits.

The bill would authorize non-member banks and trust companies to borrow from federal reserve banks on time and demand notes; and these would be made eligible for the issue, up to 90 per cent of their value, of federal reserve currency.

Efforts are to be made by the house democratic leadership to expedite action of the administration's experimental farm relief bill. Chairman Jones indicated to Speaker Rainey that the agriculture committee may be ready to report the measure tomorrow. The senate is withholding action on the proposal because of its revenue raising provisions. Under the constitution, all revenue raising measures must originate in the house.

Another administration proposal—authority for the president to place embargoes on shipments of arms and munitions to nations in conflict—will

U. S. Recognition of Soviet Declared Likely in Report

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—The Foreign Policy Association, in a review of the American attitude toward Russia, today declared that "with the inauguration of the Roosevelt administration the recognition of the soviet government appears more probable than at any time since 1917."

"According to some observers," the report added, "recognition should be accorded as early as possible in the administration, both to stimulate soviet-American trade and to facilitate collaboration of the United States and the soviet union—the two great non-League powers—in concerting measures to support the League's recommendations concerning the far eastern crisis."

Meanwhile, Senator Borah, of Idaho, and other advocates of Russian recognition are keeping the problem alive. A decision apparently has been reached by them, however, to await some definite cue from the White House before making a concerted move.

Notice already has been served on Capitol Hill that a demand will be made for detailed senate investigation before action is taken.

Among some advocates of recognition here it is felt that the Moscow government, now 16 years old, has passed the stage where it welcomes commissions of investigation from foreign powers considering the problem of granting recognition. Recent statements of, Moscow officials indicate that any power seeking to establish diplomatic relations with the soviet republic must approach it on a basis of equality in accordance with diplomatic practice.

Officially the American government, up to the present administration, has taken the position that Russia would be granted recognition only upon a settlement of the Russian debt to this government, the settlement of claims of Americans whose property was taken over by the soviet government and the pledge that communist propaganda would not be carried on in this country.

This policy was formulated by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes as secretary of state and was restated by Secretaries Kellogg and Stimson with slight alternations.

What action will be taken by President Roosevelt and when he will speak his mind has not been disclosed officially.

The report of the Foreign Policy Association, published today, was written by Vera M. Dean, and covered at some length the effect of recognition on soviet-American trade.

Her report said "many competent observers contend . . . that the soviet government is not as anxious for recognition today, when it has consolidated its international position, as in the early years of its existence, when it was confronted by a hostile world and that the longer recognition is delayed, the more difficult it will be for the United States to obtain concessions from the soviet union."

475-Pound Patient Walks to Ambulance

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—(AP) Responding to a sick call, a receiving hospital ambulance crew was dismayed today upon finding the patient, Salem Monsour, weighed 475 pounds.

"But we're not equipped with hoisting apparatus," explained the driver, Hal de Groot.

During one of those 'what to do about it" conferences, Monsour solved the situation unaided.

"Hold on a minute, gentlemen," said the patient, peering out from under the blankets. "Suppose I get up and walk out to the ambulance."

He did. At the hospital his illness was diagnosed as acute tonsillitis.

ASSEMBLY LAXITY LEAVES TALMADGE STATE'S DICTATOR

Governor, as Budget Director, Empowered To Slash Money Bill; No Extra Session Planned.

By L. A. FARRELL.

Having failed to accomplish the tasks before them in their 60-day biennial session which adjourned sine die at midnight Saturday night, members of the general assembly were at or enroute to their homes Sunday leaving Governor Eugene Talmadge virtual dictator of the state of Georgia, much against the chief executive's own wishes.

An appropriations bill which calls for expenditures far in excess of the state's anticipated revenue for 1934 and 1935 was the chief accomplishment of the assembly. Though it gives to the various departments a definite sum for each of the two years it actually merely determined the percentage or proportion of the state's income these departments will receive, as Governor Talmadge as director of the budget is empowered to reduce on a proportionate basis the appropriations to meet the income of the state.

Though the governor would not definitely say so Sunday he let it be known that he will not call an extra session unless it becomes absolutely necessary.

Believes Extra Session Useless.

Those close to the governor revealed Sunday night that the sorry record made by the assembly in the session just ended convinces him that it would be of no value to the state to bring the legislature back at a later date for probably what would be a repetition of what has just been finished.

The governor is understood to feel that the legislature not only did not accomplish anything at its session but gave no indication that it could accomplish anything no matter how many sessions it has.

For the first time in the memory

Austrian Banks Safe, Cabinet Declares

VIENNA, March 20.—(Monday.)—(AP)—Drastic measures to restore the liquidity of Austria's big banks were announced early today in a government communique, after the cabinet had met in an almost continuous session since 11 a. m. Saturday.

The decrees, based on war emergency laws, will authorize the finance ministry to lend 140,000,000 schillings (currently about $19,600,000) and the National bank to lend 40,000,000 schillings (about $5,600,000) to an "institute for revision and trusteeship" which will, in turn, lend funds to banks now embarrassed by the inability of corporations and communities, to which they lent money, to meet interest charges.

The communique denounces as "entirely unfounded" reports that any Austrian bank is in danger of collapse.

BATTLE IN COURTS ON PROCLAMATION APPEARS CERTAIN

Governor Says His Position Is Tenable and That He Intends To Take Steps Necessary To Enforce Pronouncement.

STATUTE OF 1821 IS BASIS OF ORDER

Sharply Conflicting Expressions Given by Attorneys, Constitutional Experts, Ex-Governors.

Eminent lawyers were sharply divided Sunday over the legality and constitutionality of Governor Talmadge's order suspending the prevailing schedule of automobile license tags and proclaiming a flat $3 rate for all cars during 1933.

Governor Talmadge, however, who based his action on a statute passed in 1821, was confident of his position. He said: "That's my own construction of the statute and any third grade child can read it and understand what it means.' He added that he intended to take such steps as were necessary to enforce his order.

Former governors, judges of the supreme court and former appeals court judges, superior court judges, constitutional authorities, lawyer members of the general assembly and trial lawyers were interviewed and from a score of them came widely conflicting opinions.

Acted After Assembly's Failure.

When the house and senate failed to reach an agreement on his recommendation for the $3 flat rate Saturday night, the governor issued his order. The bill, originally passed by the house, met stubborn resistance in the senate and a counter proposal for a 50 per cent cut in the prevailing schedule of prices. Five conference committees mulled over the various proposals, ending as they began—in a deadlock.

The statute under which the governor proceeded says:

"The governor may suspend the collection of the taxes or any part thereof due the state until the next meeting of the general assembly, but no longer; nor shall he otherwise interfere with the collection thereof."

Thinks Governor Has Power.

Many of the legal minds interviewed were unwilling to be quoted directly. Equally as many said they had not studied the provisions of the 110-year-old statute and were unwilling to venture an opinion without further examination of "the books." One of the outstanding constitutional lawyers of the south said: "There isn't a thing wrong with the governor's order except that it was issued on Sunday. This can be cured Monday with a reaffirmation of it. My opinion is that the charge for the tags is a tax, so intended, and the governor has the power to suspend it."

On the other hand, one of the best known constitutional lawyers of Georgia—one who has figured prominently in the framing of laws for a number of years—said that the governor was "clearly without any such power as he has assumed and if I were the motor vehicle commissioner I wouldn't think of selling a tag unless ordered to do so by the courts."

Court Action Expected.

Members of the general assembly were of the opinion that the decision of Marcus McWhorter, motor vehicle commissioner, not to sell tags at $3 meant court action and Governor Talmadge indicated that he was ready to press for enforcement of the order. It was generally believed that a test case would be launched immediately.

One of the justices of the supreme court, whose opinions are probably more closely studied than those of any of his colleagues, held the opinion that while the governor had a right to suspend taxes, under certain

QUICK ACTION SEEN ON FARM AID BILL

Final Disposal of Relief Measure, However, Matter of Week or More.

By ROY F. HENDRICKSON.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's farm relief program tonight faced a storm of amendments as congress prepared to devote much of the week to considering the proposal through which the chief executive hopes to lift agricultural prices back to pre-war levels.

A wide variance of views by congressional leaders on farm legislation, however, virtually has shut out the prospect of quick and unanimous agreement such as that afforded other emergency proposals put forward by Mr. Roosevelt.

The best that friends of the program hoped for was that the measure would be in the hands of a conference committee selected from the two branches by the end of the week. There were, however, forces which would tend to promote speed, including the early approach of planting of the crops affected by the measure, the united support of farm organizations and the president's frank assumption of responsibility for the measure, along with his pledge to be the first to acknowledge failure in event it does not succeed.

Formal introduction of the measure—submitted last week along with the president's special message recommending emergency action—was the first step scheduled tomorrow in the house. Its agriculture committee was reported prepared to act quickly upon it. Chairman Jones indicated that he hopes to simplify it but does not contemplate rewriting it to the extent of changing its fundamentals.

Representative Byrns, house majority leader, said he expected approval of the measure without substantial change in the house by Tuesday night.

Curbing of the emergency authority the bill would extend to Secretary Wallace will be sought by some legislators who are especially opposed to the delegation of broad powers to regulate marketing and processing of the farm products named in the bill.

Sumter County Bars Wives as Teachers

AMERICUS, Ga., March 19.—Married women may no longer be employed as teachers in the rural schools of Sumter county as the result of action just taken by the board of education here. Teachers who have been employed during the past two years in the school system are not affected by the ruling, and all married teachers now employed will be retained. The action was taken, it is stated, in order to provide as far as possible for the employment of persons who are either heads of families or who are dependent upon their own efforts for a living.

AINSWORTH SAYS BEER WILL HURT BUSINESS

Methodist Bishop Hopes President Will Veto "Lawless" Bill.

ATHENS, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in an address here today expressed the hope that President Roosevelt would "refuse to approve" acts of congress in passing a beer bill.

"Liquor will not promote patience and steady people's heads and beer will be a mockery in place of bread. It will retard the country's economic recovery," he said. "No depressed business man ever did drink himself into prosperity and no distressed nation can.

"Liquor is in the saddle at Washington and is riding with whip and spur. Campaign pledges against the saloon don't count any more," the bishop said.

Bishop Ainsworth said the proposed action of congress would institute a program of sales promotion whose object would be a bottle in every sideboard and a glass in the hands of every man and woman and every boy and girl in America.

"Thoughtful men must stand amazed at the lawlessness of the lawmakers themselves," he declared. The bishop said the 18th amendment was a part of the constitution, that every congressman had taken an oath to uphold it and that "no reason can reconcile a congressman's oath and the approval of this beer."

He added that "the congress that authorizes an intoxicating beer in the face of an unrepealed 18th amendment will go down in history as the arch nullifiers of their country's constitution and as having vacated the oath of allegiance."

The bishop praised the Georgia senators and congressmen who had opposed the beer bill and said "Let us hope the president, whose magnificent leadership in an hour of national peril has won the admiration of the world, will refuse to approve what a lawless congress has already done and which he never asked it to do."

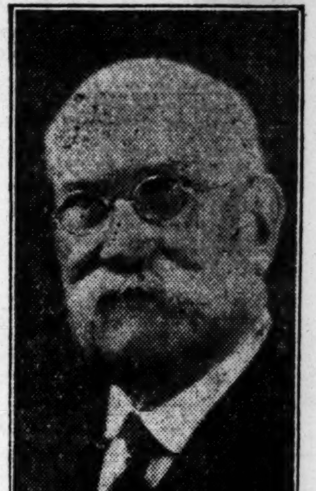
Wins, Loses Job.



GENERAL WILLIAM HARDEN.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 19.—General William Harden, well-known Savannahian who served as clerk to the treasurer of Chatham county, probably with the hope that he would eventually become treasurer himself, has had his wish gratified—but for a very short service. When Major R. J. Stewart, county treasurer for more than a quarter of a century, died, the county commissioners had the office of treasurer of Chatham county abolished. The information from Atlanta is that in the dying hours of the general assembly a bill was passed, abolishing the office of treasurer on May 10. So while General Harden has been appointed for temporary service the job will not exist after about six weeks' time.

Cuba To Support Leak For Second Ward Seat

A change in plans Sunday brought the announcement from Max M. Cuba, second ward councilman, that he will nominate and support Warren Leak as successor to the late Charles H. Sims in the battle today to select another councilman from the second ward. Leak will be opposed by William G. McRae, who will be nominated by Alderman John Scott, of the second ward.

Cuba Saturday night said he would support Dr. I. H. Etheridge for the position but following several conferences Sunday he said he would nominate Leak. Leak has the backing of many voters in the second ward and the support of the pro-administrationists. He is employed by the Southern railway.

Indications are that the backing of Cuba and Mayor James L. Key will bring the election of Leak following the wide open split between the members of the second ward delegation Saturday night over the naming of Sims' successor.

WINDER BURIAL TODAY FOR REV. J. F. JACKSON

78-Year Old Baptist Minister Was Widely Known Throughout Georgia.

Funeral services for the Rev. J. Frank Jackson, 78, widely known Baptist minister, who died Saturday night at the home of his son, W. L. Jackson, of Chattanooga, Tenn., will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon (eastern time) at the First Baptist church of Winder. The Rev. T. T. Davis and Dr W. H. Faust will officiate and burial will be in the Cedar Creek cemetery, with Harry G. Poole in charge.

For more than 45 years Mr. Jackson had been a minister and had preached in practically every county of the state. He was an evangelist and was extremely active in missionary work, being a member of the Georgia state board of missions.

Mr. Jackson was born in Winder but had resided in Atlanta for more than 20 years with his son, the Rev. T. H. Jackson, pastor of the Cooper Street Baptist church. He had only recently gone to Chattanooga and was taken ill there a month ago.

Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, Sunday said of Mr. Jackson: "I met 'Uncle Frank' as thousands of Georgians called him, 20 years ago. He understood the common people and they heard him gladly. He possessed an unusual knowledge of the Bible and could quote great sections of it from memory. The last time he was our special guest at Druid Hills he greatly stirred the people as he led them in prayer. He sought to live day by day so that others would be drawn to follow the Lord.

"I must add this word of appreciation of his wife, 'Miss Nattie,' who has labored all these years to make possible the wide ministry of her husband. Mrs. Jackson is one of the greatest Christians I have ever known."

LEAS AGAIN FACE HEARING IN COURT

Tennessee Publisher and Son Expected To Ask Continuance Today.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., March 19. (AP)—Colonel Luke Lea and his son, Luke Lea Jr., held in the county jail here since their arrest last Tuesday by North Carolina officers on an extradition warrant, conferred with attorneys today in preparation for tomorrow's hearing on their writ of habeas corpus.

While the Leas declined to issue a statement, their attorneys said they planned to ask Judge John T. Cunningham to grant a continuance, explaining that probably 10 days will be needed by them to prepare for the hearing.

Henry E. Colton, of Nashville, one of the Leas' attorneys, said North Carolina attorneys had not filed an answer to the habeas corpus petition, and that the Leas would have to file a reply, or traverse, to the North Carolina answer. Colton added that defense witnesses would have to be summoned, some from North Carolina.

Collier Goodlett, of Clarksville, also of Lea counsel, said tomorrow the Leas would renew their application for bond, refused by Judge Cunningham at the time of their arrest.

Dix Does His Best Work As 'The Great Jasper'

A great character, "The Great Jasper," has been created by Richard Dix in the picture by that name now playing at the Fox theater. Amusing and light in presentation, the story is still extremely powerful and in the title role Dix excels by far his usual performance.

The plot centers around the great Jasper Horn, who is a most lovable and quite irresponsible cuss. Dix is clever in his interpretation of a big, good-looking he-man with a perpetual wink in his eye and, with the able support he is provided (Edna May Oliver, Wera Engels, Florence Eldredge, and Betty Furness), does excedingly well.

Jasper is very different from the type of man Dix usually portrays and it is to his credit that he is able to do even better with a new type than with the old.

A human being is all Dix aspires to make of Jasper, and he succeeds. From his early days as a horse-car operator to his later years as "The Great Jasper," astrologist, Dix clearly depicts the joys, funs, and tribulations of a not-too-brilliant person with a remarkable personality—one especially attractive to women.

His last scenes are worthy of mention, for, as he lies dying, he calls on God to note that his wife, to whom he had been unfaithful too many times to remember, is "still his right hand."

Two most interesting shorts, one of the Vatican state featuring the pope, and the other composed of revived shots of former movie stars, including the immortal Lon Chaney, together with the excellent organ music of Jimmy Beers, complete the program.

Charles King Named To Talmadge's Staff

Charles King, son of Lieutenant Colonel R. DeWitt King and associated with his father in business, also became a lieutenant colonel with the announcement by Governor Talmadge Sunday night that he had been appointed to that rank on the governor's staff and also would serve as assistant aviation officer of the staff.

Colonel John H. Candler was named aviation officer of the staff in appointments announced sometime ago.

VETS OF FOREIGN WAR ATTEND MEETING HERE

Post commanders and representatives of a score of Georgia posts of Veterans of Foreign Wars met at a called session here Sunday to discuss plans for the state convention in Columbus next month.

The veterans also heard an address by James E. Van Zandt, senior national vice commander. Increased membership in Georgia posts was reported. Posts represented included those in Augusta, Macon, Savannah and Columbus.

After the meeting J. H. Bush, assistant chief of staff of Georgia, said a telegram had been sent to Representative Malcolm Tarver, of Georgia, commending him on his "independent position on behalf of veterans' legislation."

Carole Lombard Stars In 'No More Orchids'

Carole Lombard, the beautiful blonde with the stoic expression, dominates "No More Orchids," feature attraction at the Rialto theater which opened a week's run at that house on Saturday. She dominates the picture by her physical attraction, by the strength of the role given her and by her not inconsiderable acting ability.

The picture however, owes much of its undoubted success to three other members of the cast, Walter Connolly, Louise Closser Hale and Lyle Talbot. Connolly is altogether satisfactory as the father, while Miss Hale is nothing short of delightful as the grandmother. Talbot, as the hero, is sufficiently handsome and sufficiently capable to make the part thoroughly authentic.

The story many will remember, since it has been published in serial form both in Liberty Magazine and in The Atlanta Constitution. It deals with a modern girl, spoiled heiress to great wealth, who determines to marry a certain comparatively poor young man. He admits he loves her but points out she is far from fitted for the role of a poor man's wife. She demurs, but circumstances prevent, for a time, their marriage. And in the meantime she undergoes an emotional awakening that, it is evident, makes her splendidly fit for any man's mate—provided he be the right man—regardless of his financial standing.

It is a penetrating, understanding study of modern youth, with a zest and a tang to some of its lines that act like salt to a fresh cooked egg. It is good entertainment and should please a wide variety of Manager Murray's clientele.

In addition to the feature, the Rialto program has a clever comedy entitled "Campus Codes," in which girl sophomores impress upon girl freshmen that the underclass girls cannot have dates. There is also a laugh-provoking cartoon, "Scrappy's Birthday Party," an organlogue and a recent newsreel release.

Altogether two hours of excellent entertainment value whether you are hunting bargains in the amusement line or whether expense means nothing whatever to you.

George Arliss Appealing In 'The King's Vacation'

To an uninterrupted series of screen successes, genial George Arliss adds one of the most humanly appealing characterizations of his career in Warner Brother's "The King's Vacation," on display this week at the Paramount theater.

As ever delightfully suave and the personification of dignity, Mr. Arliss appears as a royalist-ridden king, who abdicates his throne to save his country from civil war, and to save himself from the regal pomp and splendor he despises. Relinquishing the crown also offers the opportunity to return to his former wife and their daughter, when and if he divorces the gracious queen, (Mrs. George Arliss) who has ruled him for 18 years.

The ex-king, returning to his first wife, who could not succeed to the throne with him because she was not of royal blood, finds poignant surprises which brings about a second but decidedly happy readjustment.

Dick Powell and Patricia Ellis provide the juvenile love interest, and others in support of Mr. Arliss are excellently cast.

A better-than-average comedy, titled "Sing, Bing, Sing," starring Bing Crosby, and an animated cartoon, a newsreel and Al Evans complete the bill.

4-POWER ACTION FOR WORLD PEACE PROPOSED BY DUCE

at all, since Italian experts had not completed examination of it. This examination was not expected to be completed before Thursday.

The British statesmen, officials said, gave complete approval of the Mussolini plan and agreed to recommend it strongly to Premier Edouard Daladier, of France.

Four-Premier Parley Planned.

If M. Daladier indicates an attitude of acceptance and wishes to discuss the details, it was understood Mr. MacDonald would ask his views regarding a possible four-premier conference, including Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, at some city in northern Italy. The conference would be similar to the Locarno meeting in 1925 and would carry the Locarno conclusions a step farther.

British officials said Mr. MacDonald and Signor Mussolini conversed only briefly concerning disarmament, devoting most of their time to political questions.

They reasoned, it was explained, that disarmament could not come before the present troubled situation in Europe was not only smoothed out, but settled in such a way as it could not recur.

The formal conversations lasted more than three hours, not including exchanges of dinners between the statesmen.

Following a conversation this afternoon, the Italian premier and Mr. MacDonald were in the best of spirits as they talked for sound films and posed for photographs at the British embassy.

The visiting statesmen will give a dinner tonight at the embassy for Il Duce. They will leave for home at noon tomorrow.

PARIS' ATTITUDE ON PLAN AWAITS CABINET MEETING

PARIS, March 19.—(AP)—The four-power peace plan discussed at Rome by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, and Premier Mussolini, of Italy, brought to government circles a hope of real progress, but a pronouncement on the plan awaits consideration at a cabinet meeting tomorrow.

Mr. MacDonald discussed his ideas with Premier Edouard Daladier at Geneva, so French officials assumed that the plan, however modified during the talks with Signor Mussolini, still is roughly acceptable to France.

French officials understand Il Duce's proposed group as a likely nucleus for a rejuvenated League of Nations.

Even if the establishment of better relations between France and Germany failed, France at any rate would get a closer contact with Premier Mussolini, with the prospect of a rapprochement that would lessen, if not dissipate, the present tension which has been marked frequently by bitterness in parliament and the press.

NEW HOPE SEEN BY U. S. FOR DISARMAMENT SUCCESS

By F. G. VOSBURGH.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP) New hope that statesmanship can turn troubled Europe out of the paths leading to possible war tonight sprang up in American official circles in the wake of the MacDonald-Mussolini conference in Rome.

The evident accord between the British and Italian leaders was interpreted here as a good augury for success in enlisting Germany and France in collaboration aimed at dispelling the current tension and war talk in Europe and paving the way for disarmament.

At the same time, observers did not minimize the delicacy of the task of bringing France and Germany into harmony and conceded that these two nations hold the key to the entire situation.

2 Youths Badly Hurt In Collision of Autos

Four persons were injured, two seriously, late Sunday night when the car of W. H. Parris, of Stone Mountain, was struck broadside by the automobile of J. E. Leard was charged with driving while intoxicated and Parris was booked on a technical charge of reckless driving.

Hugh D. Nash and Carlos Pittard, 20 and 19 respectively, both of Stone Mountain, received serious injuries and were admitted to Grady hospital. They were riding with Parris, it was said. Both were cut about the head and face, and Nash was injured internally. Leard and Parris were lacerated and bruised.

Others treated at the hospital Sunday were Mrs. W. W. Garrett, 56, and Mrs. W. L. Manning, both of 1051 Capitol avenue who were said to have been struck by an automobile. Mrs. Garrett received cuts on her leg, and Mrs. Manning's shoulder was fractured, according to attaches.

FRENCH WAR DEBT PAYMENT IN SIGHT

Cabinet Will Consider Bill Today; Herriot Backs New Measure.

PARIS, March 19.—(AP)—War debts payment probably will become an issue before the French cabinet tomorrow.

The question has been brought vigorously into the limelight by the introduction of a resolution by Rene Richard, radical socialist deputy, calling for the payment of the $19,000,000 interest owed to the United States since last December 15. M. Richard's resolution was presented in the chamber of deputies Saturday.

It gained significance when it became known that the deputy had acted with the approval of former Premier Edouard Herriot, who has led a movement to make the payment.

The government of M. Herriot fell in December when the then premier insisted on payment of the interest.

The semi-official newspaper, Le Temps, observed that payment as a gesture to propitiate America, or as a gift in time of trouble, was unworthy of great peoples.

In the preamble to his resolution, M. Richard declared: "A severe crisis has struck the money and credit of the great American republic. Before this new fact, it is no longer for a legal discussion that we summon the chamber, but for an act of international solidarity.

"It is because we believe in the duty and solidarity of peoples; it is because we believe this duty of solidarity is the greatest and most imperative of international duties; it is because we believe this constitutes an international morality of peoples and democracies that we ask the chamber to make this gesture which will honor it and honor our country."

M. Richard said today that he was assured his resolution would be rapidly acted upon in the chamber and that he was confident of its passage.

He added that he regretted an attack of grippe would prevent him pushing the proposal personally for several days.

"M. Herriot," he continued, "was the only person I confided to before introduction of the proposition, and he approved heartily."

Cotton Group Scores Farm Relief Program

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(AP)—A bitter attack upon the administration's farm relief program as holding "no hope for success" was launched late tonight by a four-man special committee of the American Cotton Shippers' Association.

Following a series of conferences tonight at a hotel here, the committee issued a lengthy statement declaring that the men who aided in drawing up the cotton provisions of the administration bill were "far from being experienced in the handling and distribution of cotton."

"They are experienced chiefly," the statement said, "in the preparation of propaganda and in political methods necessary to keep themselves drawing good salaries from farm organizations and, indirectly, from the United States treasury."

The statement was signed by T. F. Bush, of Waco, Texas; J. W. Garrow, of Houston, Texas; C. W. Butler, of Memphis, and Dameron H. Williams, of Gastonia, N. C. They mentioned no names of those they referred to.

8TH WARD DRY GROUP FORMS ORGANIZATION

With the avowed purpose of "keeping Georgia in the dry column when the repeal election is held," the eighth ward unit of the Consolidated Forces for Prohibition in Georgia was organized recently at a meeting held in the auditorium of the Tenth Street school. Speeches were made by John W. Crenshaw, chairman of the Fulton county group; Solicitor John Hudson, Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, the Rev. G. C. Light, Mrs. Mary S. Russell and Mrs. Harold Jordan.

Temporary officers of the club were named as follows: Professor N. S. Herod, chairman; Mrs. W. F. Trenary, vice chairman; Mrs. Charles Doolittle, secretary; Professor J. H. Gailey, treasurer, and J. W. Headden, chairman of precinct B. Executive committee members are W. F. Trenary, Dr. Lyons, Mrs. Jordan, Robert E. Mell, W. Salem Brown, Miss Hailey Randall and Mrs. Kenneth M. Trowbridge.

CHOPS WIFE TO DEATH, KILLS SELF ON ARREST

CINCINNATI, March 19.—(AP)—The body of a woman, chopped into 14 pieces, was discovered in an automobile here today and shortly afterward her husband committed suicide after battling officers.

Police said the couple was identified as Charles D. Evans, 50, an Indianapolis real estate dealer, and Ellen J. Evans, 42, of 1321 Congress avenue, Indianapolis.

Police found a note from an attorney instructing Evans to pay his wife $25 alimony every two weeks. When asked if he killed the woman, Evans replied affirmatively, adding "She tried to shoot me."

The woman's body was discovered when police stopped Evans because his automobile bore a 1932 license plate. He became nervous, and thinking he might be a liquor runner, Officer Elmer Joyce lifted a tarpaulin in the back of the car.

Evans then drew from his pocket a safety razor blade, cut his wrist and began slashing at his throat.

Two of the officers shot at his arm, trying to stop him. Evans, a powerful 235-pound man, held the officers off with one hand and slashed at his throat with the other.

GROWING A FLOWER GIRL
KEPT FRESH IN THE WELDED HUMIDOR PACK
CAMEL
Copyright, 1933, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company
CAMELS

ILLUSION:
The magician exhibits a flower pot with hinged sides on a table in the center of the stage. He opens out the sides to show that this container is empty. Closing it up, he places a screen between it and the audience. After a short period of magic incantations he removes the screen. The astounded audience sees a beautiful girl, covered to the shoulders in lovely flowers, rising from the "empty" container. Where did she come from?

EXPLANATION:
The girl was hiding behind the drape of the table. There is a trap door in the bottom of the flower pot, with a hole large enough to allow her to crawl through. The flowers, called "magicians' feather flowers," are a regular part of a magician's outfit. The flower girl wears a rubber tunic and a bathing cap to keep the flowers compressed into small space. She slides the tunic down and the flowers expand when she emerges.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED ...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

A trick frequently worked in cigarette advertising is the illusion that mildness in a cigarette comes from mysterious processes of manufacture.

EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes today are made in modern sanitary factories with up-to-date machinery. All are heat treated—some more intensively than others, because raw, inferior tobaccos require more intensive treatment than choice, ripe tobaccos.

The real difference comes in the tobaccos that are used. The better the tobacco, the milder it is.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

That is why Camels are so mild. That is why Camels have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made.

It's the secret of Camels' rich "bouquet"... their cool flavor... their non-irritating mildness.

Give your taste a chance to appreciate the greater pleasure and satisfaction of the more expensive tobaccos.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 20, 1933.

A LONG-HORN STAMPEDE.

Never in its history has Georgia been afflicted with so incompetent a legislature as the one which has just adjourned after having spent two months in doing little or nothing.

From the first it refused to awake to a realization of the vital importance of meeting squarely and courageously the urgent problems before it, despite the urging of Governor Talmadge, President of the Senate McWhorter, Speaker Rivers and some of the outstanding leaders of both houses.

From beginning to end its sessions have been a stampede of long-horns, and a record of incompetence unprecedented in the legislative annals of the state.

It adjourned with the tax bill in a muddle and the appropriation bill a farce.

The automobile license tag bill became a political football to be kicked back and forth between the senate and the house, in utter disregard of the popular mandate and the convention pledge.

Georgia has had other legislatures of the long-horn variety—but this is the worst of all.

How it is that the counties of Georgia are willing to send such men to represent them is hard to understand.

There are in the membership of the present general assembly many seasoned legislators, entitled to lead because of their ability and long experience, but their efforts were like chaff before the wind when the long-horns started their stampede.

These leaders zealously and earnestly strove to bring order out of the chaos of interminable wrangling and political back-biting, so that the people would not be the sufferers, but they never had a chance! Their wise counsel and their efforts at leadership, backed by long experience in public affairs and acknowledged ability, went unheeded by a legislature in grasp of mob hysteria.

It is to be hoped that out of the disgraceful record of this legislature will come the dawning of a new day when the people of every county in the state will awake to the necessity of sending competent representatives to speak for them, rather than the long-horned mavericks responsible for the fiasco of this lamented session.

WISE RELIEF.

The wisdom of the application of the back-to-the-farm movement to unemployment relief is demonstrated by the experience of the Georgia city of Columbus, where during the past year 166 families, comprising 843 people, have been placed on farms.

Every one of these families who have had time to raise a crop are off the emergency relief rolls and it is assured that the same will be true of the remaining families when their first food crops begin to mature.

Now these families, instead of being dependent upon charity for food and shelter and with nothing to keep their hands and their minds occupied, are installed in their own homes, with opportunity to once more become self-supporting and self-respecting citizens.

The work of moving these families to the farm has been done under the direction of the emergency relief committee of the city and the Muscogee county board of commissioners—both of which bodies in Atlanta refused to co-operate with the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce in the well organized back-to-the-farm program it launched last summer.

With the strong indorsement of Mayor Key, a hundred families, none of whom had been on the charity rolls for less than a year, were settled on farms in various near-by counties. The removal of these families effected a saving of approximately $10,000 per year in the emergency relief expenditures.

Sixteen hundred former farmers, heads of unemployed, charity-supported families in Atlanta registered with the Chamber of Commerce in the hope of being placed once more on farms where they could become self-supporting. Six hundred farms have been offered, rent-free, by Georgia landowners for the use of these farmers who want to rehabilitate themselves on the land from which they came.

These families can be transported to the farm, supplied with necessary tools and kept in food until their first crops come in, for from $50 to $75, much less than the amount being paid for their meager food rations in Atlanta.

But the well-planned and wise program of the Chamber of Commerce had to be abandoned because of the opposition from sources which should have given it support.

What Atlanta could have accomplished in the solution of our critical unemployment situation is shown by the success with which Columbus has substituted opportunity for the dole.

NO ROOM FOR ENMITY.

The statement of Yosuke Matsuoka, chief Japanese delegate at the recent League of Nations sessions, in which he discussed the relations between Japan and the United States, declaring that war between the two nations "would be an act of madness," should serve to clear up the misconception of many Americans as to the attitude of the Japanese government and people toward this country.

Mr. Matsuoka points out that "the United States and Japan have an important mission to fulfill for the sake of humanity in building up the coming era of Pacific civilization, in which the east and the west will unite in peace for the first time in history."

To that end he stresses that "understanding and friendship between these two advanced countries is essential to the welfare of all the Pacific, and will be of benefit not only to ourselves but to others as well, particularly the people of China."

Those are not the words to be expected from the representative of a power-mad or oppressive people, nor of a people holding animosity or enmity to the United States.

That the sentiment expressed by Mr. Matsuoka represents the feelings and ambitions of the majority of the Japanese people cannot be doubted. Since his graduation from the University of Oregon he has held many of the most important posts in the Japanese government, culminating with the delicate and difficult task of representing his nation at Geneva.

Coming from a man holding so high a position in his government, the statement is reassuring in its presentation of Japan's continued good will toward the United States.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Vintners Rejoice.

The news that the house had lifted the liquor prescriptions ban, and similar indications that the American people are about to abandon their bone-dry attitude, produced a lively reaction in France where huge stocks of wine have been maturing all these years.

Of course, they haven't begun to ship yet, but they are supposed to be taking orders. The same applies to Scotland and the whisky distilleries. Everybody in the liquor business has high hopes that the golden era of yore is about to return. In their optimistic calculations the vintners and distillers see 125,000,000 individuals with parched throats awaiting the first boatload of liquor from abroad, just as soon as the last restriction has been removed, and starting to guzzle as if it were a nation-wide contest.

These people make one supreme mistake. In the first place, America was not parched at all and in the second place I feel certain that there are more abstainers in the U. S. A. at present than there were before prohibition came in. It seems also quite certain that the gravity of the times will itself enforce moderation. In Russia I noticed moujiks after selling their stuff in the markets go to the first dram-shop and drink themselves into a stupor, and I could very well understand the notices put up by the government saying that "drink was a social enemy."

We cannot prevent man from drinking all he wants when we remove restrictions, but we can point out to him the dangers of it, physical dangers and moral dangers. Education is the only remedy against the evils of the saloon. If America goes wet and the first hullabaloo of rejoicing is over, a new era opens for the advocates of temperance.

Olympus Repeopled.

The Turkish government is planning a sporting center on Mount Olympus, the immortal gathering place of the gods in days of antiquity. Skiing is said to be one of the fantasies in which the government of Kemal Pasha wants to educate the Turks. After taking away those huge bloomers the Turcos used to wear it might indeed be possible. And so it will no doubt come to pass that a new crop of Venuses and Junos and Aphrodites will people the illustrious heights where once benignant Zeus contemplated the antics of men and gods without envy or malice. Tobaggans on the classical slopes. Gay-colored jumpers on the pathways where Venus strayed. Romance and Turkish delight!

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

MORE ABOUT ANHEDONIA AMERICANA.

Anhedonia is a name a French psychologist gives for incapacity to enjoy life or to be happy.

I add the near-adjective because I believe anhedonia is typically American, and we shall see why presently.

Although it was a psychologist who invented the name I beg to point out that anhedonia is a question principally of physiology, health, hygiene and not merely the trend of mind.

The noisiest and hence best known if not leading psychologists of the day are blatant quacks who know the art of marketing manuscripts to women's magazines and delivering lectures to women's clubs. Their stock in trade is language. They are always busy telling everybody how to do everything, but they never do anything themselves.

I suppose no one doubts that the depression and discouragement of the victim of some incurable organic disease is physical, physiological, not just mental. Only a make-believe happiness or good cheer can go with grave illness. No sane sick person can or should pretend to be happy. Victims of organic disease constitute a large share of the anhedoniacs, and your cheap canned psychology isn't worth a tinker's dam for these joyless ones. A physician is what they need, a plain, every-day doctor who knows that psychology is just a minor part of physiology, that the function of the mind is but one of the many functions of the body on which the well being of the body depends.

While almost every one concedes that organic disease accounts for the invalid's low spirits, a great many laymen, what I call wiseacres, that is, persons of good enough education but deplorably ignorant of human physiology and hygiene and generally misinformed about disease, do not comprehend that less plainly manifest disturbances of health, functional diseases (as we call them until we can decide which particular organ is damaged), explain most of the anhedonia that prevails in America.

As a familiar example we may mention the every-day observation of languor, listlessness and melancholy in youngsters in their 'teens, particularly girls, who suffer from insufficient thyroid gland function, and the way a suitable iodin ration restores the natural cheerfulness and vivacity of youth. Or take the instance of the adult who begins to go stale in the very prime of life, to age prematurely and feel constantly tired without cause and to be conscious of an unusual mental torpor and a loss of former good nature—it is remarkable how a wee drop of iodin brightens these older boys and girls up and helps them to thrust back the premature age which had almost fastened on them.

When or if this country grows up we shall require that any one who holds himself out as a psychologist shall first be a qualified physician. That will dispose of the horde of quack psychologists now teaching people how to train children, how to prevent crime, how to buy and sell, how to be successful in business, love, how to have a dominating personality.

In the succeeding talk we shall analyze anhedonia and see just what it is composed of.

If Green Drivers Toot Their Horns Most, You Avoid Seeming Green by Keeping Still

By Robert Quillen

There are men who earn their bread by thinking. Given a subject to examine, they carefully take it apart to see what makes it tick.

They have no better thinking equipment than other men, but they are useful because they take time to pursue a thought, logical step by step, to its equally logical conclusion, while other people utilize their thinking ability in doing the world's work.

Years ago, when the pace of the world was slower, one of these professional thinkers might spend a year or two thinking about fleas, and then write a ponderous treatise of three volumes entitled: "An Introduction to a Study of the Flea."

And people would read it, because they had lots of time and little to do.

But with the coming of modernism and fast living, the world lost patience with the long-winded. The man who had anything to say was warned to say it in a hurry.

The new deal made life miserable for the publicist. If he used enough words to present his evidence, nobody would read him; if he merely offered his conclusions, a cynical world said: "Yeah? Where's your proof?"

Driven by necessity, he chose the less of two evils and presented his facts as briefly as possible. Seven hours of consulting authorities would net the simple, unsupported declaration: "The banana is a vegetable."

That system served while readers had faith. But a world disaster set everybody to thinking, and everybody came to bat with an explanation and a remedy.

And hardly bothered to dig up evidence or enlist the support of logic or even to consult reason. All alike were pundits, declaiming in a thus-saith-the-lord tone of voice: "This is the trouble, and this is the cure. I have spoken."

And all at once everybody seemed asinine. Thousands solemnly handing down opinions from Sinai, no two of them in agreement, and nobody able to prove a thing he said.

There were exceptions. A few learned and famous men, being questioned, answered humbly: "I do not know."

And since the most ignorant are most cock-sure in offering their cure-alls, the only way to avoid being classed with them is to confess that you have neither explanation nor cure.

OHIO VALLEY FLOOD TAKES FOUR LIVES; DAMAGE IS HEAVY

numerous other suburbs of Cincinnati. The municipal airport was covered with water and many planes were removed to landing fields on higher grounds.

52 People Marooned.

At Miami Grove, near Cincinnati, 52 people were marooned for six hours on top of tourist camp cabins.

Heavy freight cars were put on the tracks of the Cincinnati, Georgetown & Portsmouth railway at Cincinnati to prevent the tracks from being washed away by the Little Miami.

Only five major highways were open into Cincinnati. One led to Louisville, two to Lexington, Ky.; one to Richmond, Ind., and one to Lebanon, Ohio. Both routes of the Dixie highway to Hamilton were closed.

Two traction cars of the C. & L. E. railroad burned at Cincinnati while firemen tried to fight the flames from rowboats. The cars were valued at $70,000.

Heavy rains were reported at Marietta, but no worry was caused there since the crest of the Ohio had dropped five feet in 30 hours. A rise of six to 12 inches was looked for, but this was considered not enough to cause damage.

All agencies of the city of Cincinnati rallied to meet the emergency. Efforts of the police, fire and health agencies were co-ordinated. A flood headquarters was set up, two halls were opened for the convenience of the homeless, and a dozen more equipped with cots and bedding for their care.

High waters along the Ohio river front, welling over into the business district of Covington and Newport, in Kentucky, and invading the warehouse district of downtown Cincinnati, forced four trunk railroads to abandon their Cincinnati terminal and operate instead through the new Union terminal, which was not to have been officially opened until April 2.

At Gallipolis, Ohio, the river was 53 feet and rising, with indications it would go three more feet.

At Maysville, Ky., a near-cloudburst deluged an already soaked town tonight, overflowing sewers and bursting a water main. The Ohio river there was at 56-foot stage, as against a flood stage of 48 feet, and the eastern part of the town was isolated except for communication over a high railroad bridge. A hundred families were forced to flee from their homes.

Fifty houses were flooded at Athens, Ohio, as the Hocking river, rising two inches an hour, reached a stage of 17 1-2 feet. Bus service from the east was stopped.

Two feet of water flowed in the streets of Durbin and Snyderville southwest of Springfield. More rain was predicted.

FLOOD STAGE REPORTED REACHED AT LOUISVILLE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 19.—(AP)—Driven out of its banks by heavy rains, the Ohio river reached flood stage here today and continued rising steadily.

Many residents of the river section were forced to abandon their homes as the water inundated basements, blocked several highways and crept further upward. Part of the Louisville-Cincinnati highway in Jefferson county was under water but passable, and U. S. 31 was blocked at Speed, Indiana.

The weather bureau expected the river to continue rising until Thursday but expressed belief there would be no serious damage in this vicinity.

Flood stage here is 28 feet on the upper gauge and 57 feet on the lower gauge. Stages of 37 feet on the upper gauge and 66 on the lower were expected before the water starts receding. The rate of rise was approximately .25 of an inch per hour. Rainfall yesterday and last night was 1.86 inches. There was no rain today. In the Warsaw, Ky., region the rainfall approximated 2 inches.

Flood stage was reached today at Ashland, Ky., on the upper Ohio, and was predicted for Evansville, Ind., on the lower river, tomorrow.

Other sections of the state reported heavy rains but no flood conditions. In several instances small streams and creeks flooded lowlands but were not expected to cause serious damage.

ALABAMA RIVER EXPECTED TO RISE DUE TO RAINS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 19.—(UP)—Excessive rains reported over Alabama today were expected to cause rapid rise of the Alabama river, but no damaging floods are expected unless the rains continued for another 24 hours, Weather Forecaster F. C. Hood announced tonight.

Montgomery reported 4.51 inches rainfall; Mobile, 1.82; Birmingham, 1.70, for the 12 hours ending at 7 p. m.

The Cahaba river is expected to reach a stage of 26 feet, three feet above flood level, Hood said.

AIR, AUTO CRASHES CLAIM HEAVY TOLL

Twenty-One Persons Killed in Southern Accidents During Week-End.

By the Associated Press.

Three airplane accidents claimed seven lives and sent the south's week-end accident death toll to 21.

Louisiana reported five dead; Tennessee four; North Carolina and Virginia, three each; Georgia and Arkansas, two each, and Florida and Kentucky, one.

The dead:

LOUISIANA.

Five members of one New Orleans family were drowned as their automobile plunged off a ferry at Houltonville into the Tchefuncta river. They were Mrs. Olivia Rousseau, Miss Estelle Rousseau, sister-in-law of Mrs. Rousseau, and the three Rousseau children, June, Muriel and Rodney.

TENNESSEE.

Mrs. Steele suffered a fractured jaw and another passenger received minor injuries. At Memphis, T. B. Gentry and Thomas Archer died of injuries suffered in a boiler explosion. E. Greer was hit by a car and killed at Trenton.

VIRGINIA.

Crash of an army transport plane at Petersburg killed three fliers, the pilot, Lieutenant James A. Willis, of Bolling field, Washington; his father, Major James A. Willis, and Major John A. Parker. The latter two were connected with the judge advocate general's department.

FLORIDA.

The body of an unidentified man was found floating near the Miami municipal docks.

ZANGARA TO DIE IN FLORIDA TODAY

cal period with an abdominal wound; Miss Margaret Kruis, Newark, N. J.; William Sinnott, New York policeman, and Millard Caldwell, Coconut Grove, Fla. The latter three had head wounds which did not prove serious and were soon discharged from the hospital.

Zangara asserted continually that he intended to shoot Mr. Roosevelt and that he went to Bay Front park in Miami on the night the president-elect was given a public reception, taking a newspaper picture in order to better identify his intended victim.

When Zangara climbed upon a chair and aimed his pistol at Mr. Roosevelt Mrs. W. F. Cross, Miami, and others interfered. The assassin's bullets then sprayed the crowd.

Zangara is one of three condemned men now awaiting execution in death row, their electrocution warrants signed by Governor Sholtz.

One of the others is Elvin E. Jeffcoat, Clearwater, Fla., tradesman who slew his wife with a hammer in 1930. His execution also has been set for next Friday.

The other is Will James, Marion county, Florida, negro, who was given the death penalty for a criminal assult on a 77-year-old white woman about a year ago. His execution is set for the week of March 27.

State prison officials have taken care to treat Zangaras' execution as nearly as possible like any other electrocution at the prison farm. The only differences were the secret removal of the prisoner from the Dade county jail at Miami to the death cell here and the addition of eight national guard machine gunners from Lake City, Fla., to the regular prison guard.

Superintendent Chapman, Sheriff Hardie, several deputies and assistants, a jury of 12 witnesses, a physician and three newspaper reporters are expected to witness the electrocution. The law also permits the condemned man's attorney and a minister to be present, but Zangara's attorneys were named by the court at Miami and he several times said he did not believe in God and wanted nothing to do with religion.

Scores of requests to witness the execution were received at the prison and here at the offices of Governor Sholtz and other state officials in Tallahassee. All were refused, the governor saying he did not want to make the affair "a Roman holiday."

Earth Shocks Felt In Greece, California

ATHENS, Greece, March 19.—(UP)—Strong earth shocks shook the Chalkidiki peninsula in northern Greece today, sending the populace into the open in terror.

The last standing ruins in the villages, devastated by an earthquake recently, were tumbled to earth.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—(AP)—Another in the long series of "after shocks" following the earthquake of March 10 which caused heavy property damage and resulted in 116 deaths in southern California, was recorded in the Los Angeles area at 1:24 p. m. today.

ASSEMBLY LAXITY LEAVES TALMADGE STATE'S DICTATOR

of the oldest observer the legislature sounded its final gavel at midnight, thereby assisting the governor to carry out one of his campaign pledges, even though it forced him to invoke executive authority to bring about success of another pledge, the $3 automobile license tag.

It was exactly 12 o'clock midnight when Speaker E. D. Rivers declared the house adjourned sine die and the senate would have quit exactly at that time had it not been in the midst of a vote on a resolution which attacked Governor Talmadge for his expenditures while serving as commissioner of agriculture. The resolution was voted down by the overwhelming majority of 40-to-4. The vote was taken against a committee report, the committee having studied the resolution and asked that the resolution, sponsored by Senator James F. Boykin, of Lincolnton, be approved.

Singularly it was the senate which had all through the session antagonized the governor which stood by him in the closing days of the session while the house, which until the last week had followed his leadership to a great extent, turned down Saturday night his bill which would have provided a cotton holiday for Georgia in 1934 if the other cotton-growing states enacted a similar statute.

No Tax Revision.

There was no revision of the general tax act during the session, the senate refusing to take up the revised act, alleging that it was not received in complete form Thursday night until too late to give it a first reading. Another measure which failed of enactment because of this attitude on the part of the senate was the Culpepper bill, which would have extended for two more years the 20 per cent cigaret tax, the income of which is allocated to pay Confederate pensions. This tax expires on April 1. Governor Talmadge said Sunday that he believed if all Georgia citizens were patriotic enough to pay the regular 10 per cent tax the income from this would be almost enough to pay the pensions and he would obtain the balance from some undetermined source.

Other major bills which failed of passage were the proposed 5 per cent sales tax, the proposal to reorganize the highway board and other measures.

The effort to get into the senate journal the criticism of Governor Talmadge came just a few minutes before 12 o'clock Saturday night.

Resolution Reconsidered.

The Boykin resolution had been defeated earlier in the week but the senate had reconsidered its action and referred the matter to a committee headed by Senator John Lewis, of Sparta.

As President McWhorter appointed a committee composed of Senator Andrew J. Tuten, of Alma, and Senator Walter A. Sims, of Atlanta, to report to the governor that the senate was ready to adjourn, Senator Lewis handed a report of his committee to the president, saying it was the majority report, though signed by only six of the 16 members of the committee. Another report recommending adversely on the resolution was handed in. It was signed by the 10 other members of the committee, Lewis saying this was the minority report even though it was signed by more senators than the first report.

Supporters of the governor demanded that they be given an opportunity to vote on the reports, Senator Tuten, Senator Sisk and others scoring Lewis for waiting until a minute before adjournment time to file the report.

Sisk termed the report of the Lewis group the "most damnable piece of treachery" he had ever seen.

After lengthy arguments in which a large majority of the senate, including senators who had opposed his executive policies, the report of the Lewis group was adversed by a 40-to-4 vote. Senators Lewis, Boykin, Pottle and Cloud voted against the majority.

The resolution had called upon the governor to permit suit against his bondsmen for the alleged misspent funds.

The 1934-35 general appropriations bill, totaling approximately $1,000,000 less than the 1932 appropriations, was pushed through the general assembly scarcely three hours before it adjourned sine die Saturday night.

The house and senate set aside $9,754,350 for state institutions and departments for 1934, and $9,921,350 for 1935. The 1932 appropriation for 1932 was $10,893,909, but that figure was scaled down to $9,750,626 by former Governor Richard B. Russell because of a shrinkage of revenue. The bill for the next biennium bears a similar provision allowing the governor to reduce appropriations if there is not enough money.

Speaker Rivers, acting with the common consent of all parties interested in the motor bus and truck bill, broke up a well-organized filibuster in the house to give the finance sheet right-of-way. Passage of the appropriations bill reduced considerably the chances of an extraordinary session this fall. Such a session would have been necessary had the bill failed to pass.

Representative Vaughn, of Rockdale, in the house, and Senator Campbell, of Covington, in the senate, opposed vigorously the department of agriculture appropriation of $156,000. They asked for $200,000, but their request was not granted.

Representatives Allen and Ennis, of Baldwin, requested more money for the Milledgeville state hospital, but the amount of $1,100,000, set by a conference committee, was allowed to stand.

The board of regents received $1,500,000 for each of the two years, thus averting threatened closing of several schools throughout the state. Board members said they would have had to close some higher institution if the $1,500,000 appropriation had not been granted.

The appropriations bill passed by the house was approximately $10,500,000, and the senate bill was approximately $11,000,000. The conference committee reduced both figures, but still did not set the amount as low as Governor Talmadge and the budget bureau recommended, $8,590,000.

Principal changes made in the conference committee report were: Reduction of the common school appropriation from the senate figure of $5,000,000 and increase of the house appropriation of $4,500,000 to a final total of $4,564,600; reduction of the veterinary department from $75,000 to $50,000; reduction of the comptroller general appropriation from $150,000 to $110,000; reduction of the health department appropriation from $150,000 to $125,000.

The conference committee eliminated the house provision against nepotism in state departments.

The bill carries a clause cancelling all unpaid appropriations dating back as far as 1927 against which there are no contracts, and excluding money due the common schools, and the Confederate veterans. Provision is made in several allocated funds that 3 per cent shall go to the general treasury to pay for expenses of collection and other administrative details. The highway department was given 97 per cent of its allocated funds in the bill.

SPRING ACCORDED CHILLY RECEPTION

Snow, Rain, Floods Join To Welcome Change of Seasons in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

Spring's official arrival today was heralded with chilly winds, snow, rain and floods.

Citizens brushed snow from doorsteps; they skidded over sleet; they donned overcoats and slickers to brave biting winds and rain; they fought storms on the waves and floods that sent rivers from their banks.

In short, about the only place spring was manifest was on the calendar.

Last night's news showed:

The worst flood in the Ohio valley since 1913. At least four dead.

Storms lashing portions of the Pacific, Atlantic and Great Lakes, with ships in difficulties. The steel freighter Canadian Seigneur called desperately for aid off the Aleutian Islands. Six members of the crew of the motor trawler Voyager were removed to safety when the craft went aground in fog and heavy seas off North Carolina. A derelict was reported endangering fog-shrouded shipping off Georgia banks in the Atlantic.

Three persons died when an army transport airplane crashed in fog near Petersburg, Va.

Snow swirled in the midwest. Sleet and rain made other portions of that section uncomfortable. There was sleet and a temperature of 35 in New York.

An earthquake of minor intensity shivered the California region. Arkansas saw tornado winds die out.

Illinois awoke to a forecast for its first official day of spring: "Four inches of snow by nightfall."

A sandstorm whizzed through Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle.

A few Kansas highways were snowblocked.

Aviation companies said snow fell in Arizona and New Mexico.

Kansas City had a thermometer reading of 28.

Near Hot Springs, Ark., two women were drowned when the automobile in which they were passengers was swept from a bridge over which flood waters roared.

CYCLONIC WIND WREAKS HAVOC IN TENNESSEE

SWEETWATER, Tenn., March 19. (AP)—A cyclonic wind spread destruction here early this morning when it blasted a 200-foot path through the city, unroofing residences, demolishing small buildings and uprooting trees. The residence of James May, member of the legislature, suffered badly, the roof being blown off and windows smashed.

APPROVAL SEEN OF ECONOMY, BEER MEASURES TODAY

be given consideration by the house foreign affairs committee on Tuesday. Chairman McReynolds said Undersecretary of State Phillips will testify for the measure.

Re-enactment of the one-cent a gallon gasoline tax is planned by Chairman Doughton, of the house ways and means committee, before the end of the special session. The time limit on the levy expires on July 1. It has been the most revenue producing of all the taxes enacted in the billion-dollar bill last year.

A measure to re-enact it passed the house in the last session but died in the senate. A yield of about $150,000,000 in revenue has been estimated from this levy.

During the week, the senate foreign relations committee will consider the appointment by President Roosevelt of Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville, Ky., as ambassador to Great Britain. The appointment is being opposed by Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, who claims that Bingham made specehes in the British Isles several years ago that were pro-English.

LAWYERS, JURISTS DIVIDED ON ORDER FOR $3 AUTO TAGS

conditions, he was unable to relieve the taxpayer of liability.

Most of the lawyers referred to both the Lee case, in the 70th Georgia report, and to the Southwestern railroad case, in the 164th report. The former, they said, ruled that the governor was powerless to "compromise" taxes and the latter ruled that the license tag charge is not a tax but an identification "toll" assessed under police powers.

Two Opposed Opinions.

Two diametrically opposed opinions came from William Schley Howard and Representative J. M. C. Townsend, Dade county lawyer.

"In my judgment," Howard said, "the governor has no constitutional or statutory authority for the order. If it were the ad valorem tax, he probably could issue the order. That statute was passed in 1821 when we had nothing but ad valorem taxes."

Townsend maintained that while the executive had power to suspend taxes imposed by statute, as the tag fee, he had no authority to suspend the ad valorem taxes levied under authority of the constitution.

Samuel N. Evins, of the firm of Jones, Evins, Powers and Jones, said he had not examined the code but was of the opinion that the governor had sufficient authority to act.

Believes Talmadge Wrong.

Paul S. Etheridge, Atlanta lawyer and former chairman of the Fulton county board of commissioners, said: "If the tag tax is constitutional, and the courts have so held, I am of the opinion the governor is without authority to suspend it."

A former governor of Georgia and one of the state's best known lawyers, suggested, as an analogy, the fact that the governor has power under the constitution to veto an entire appropriation bill of the general assembly but is prohibited from vetoing any part thereof.

D. F. McClatchey, former secretary of the senate, said that in his opinion the order will stand. McClatchey is highly regarded for his opinions on legislative matters.

It is a grey woolen mixture with angora finish. The guimpe is white crepe silk and tubbable which makes it such a practical little outfit.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I have been married for 10 years to a man that loves me. I cannot doubt this though an outsider hearing him talk to me sometimes might doubt it. When he is sober he is kind and affectionate and we have a good time together, but when he is drinking he is quarrelsome and fault-finding Sometimes I think I will leave him and try to make a new life for myself. I have despaired of his giving up drink. How do you account for a man being mean to a woman when they are in love with each other?

MRS. D. L. K.

ANSWER:

We are all prone to turn against the people we have wronged when we are conscious of having wronged them. This tendency manifests itself all up and down the scale of life. When a woman makes a bill at the store and doesn't pay it, instead of continuing to make her purchases at that store she moves on to another one and the merchant loses the original account and the customer's good will too, not because he has done her an injustice, but because she has done him an injustice. A man lends money to a friend and if it isn't repaid the lender loses his friend and his money. In just the same manner a husband indulging in a weakness that if offensive to his wife is goaded by his senses of guilt into finding fault with her. It is just one of the perversities of human nature that has always existed but one that has only in recent years been explained by the psychologists.

Another well understood fact may contribute to the husband's quarrelsome attitude when he is drinking; alcohol releases inhibitions. When a man is sober he can control his temper and his tongue, even when his wife does and says things that irritate him. But when he is under the influence of alcohol all the restraint and control, that he is able to exercise when sober, is dissipated; he laughs at what amuses him, cries over what distresses him, finds fault with what displeases him and quarrels with those whom he loves best.

The real test of a man's affection for his wife lies in the way he treats her when he is sober. The old Latin saying that "there is truth in wine" has its basis in fact. No one will deny it, but it is generally the ugly side of a man's nature that is revealed by his drinking.

Carl Sandburg has a poem in which he asks a question that you might do well to answer to yourself: "Are the lovers losers? Do any get more than the lovers? I think not. When a man and his wife love each other there is no new life that either of them may make that will give them the satisfaction that they have in being together. Love is the great miracle worker. It doesn't always enable a man to overcome weakness but it prods him when the indulgence of it wounds his wife. Love may not enable a woman to understand why her husband can indulge a weakness that wounds her but it makes her able to endure the pain of it. Love is the foundation of marriage. So long as the foundation stands firm why wreck the marriage?

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I was desperately in love with a man that I thought loved me. He made me miserable by marrying another woman. I knew he had been going with other girls but he swore that he loved only me. Is it possible for a man to love two girls at the same time? Is there any chance for me to fall in love again? I ignore all the men I know and make dates with none of them. I feel so beaten down by my experience.

C. D.

ANSWER:

It is often said of the British that they never know when they are whipped. They have nothing on American females, for they never seem to know when they are whipped. A man might be attracted to two women at the same time but he marries the one he loves and the one that is deserted may as well face the fact that she was fooled.

There is not a chance that you will fall in love again as long as you ignore the men and refuse to make dates with them. Love sometimes comes as a bolt from the blue, but as a general rule it is the outgrowth of friendship or at least of close association with a member of the opposite sex. How can you expect to heal your broken heart unless you apply the balm that is the great healer? Forget the worthless scamp that deceived you. Utter a prayer of thanksgiving that you escaped life bondage to a deserter and then throw yourself wholeheartedly into the business of making acquaintances and cultivating friendships with all the worthy unmarried men in your vicinity.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

BY ELY CULBERTSON,

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Masters of Bridge

Mr. Edward Hymes Jr. has long been known as one of the most fantastic bidders the game of Contract Bridge has ever produced. Because of his reputation for unusual and startling bids, he is often able to score remarkable results on normal hands, principally because his opponents are always looking for something unexpected. Actually, he is one of the soundest Dummy and defensive players in the country, and the fact that his bidding is not always sound is because he really enjoys the game more than anybody else, and not because he lacks knowledge of the proper principles. The following hand is an illustration of his faultless technique in play:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 8 7 3
	♡ K Q 7
	♢ K Q 9 4
	♣ A 8 2
♠ Q J 6 5	N	♠ —
♡ A J 10	W E	♡ 9 8 4 3 2
♢ 7 3 2	S	♢ 10 6 5
♣ K Q J		♣ 7 6 5 4 3
	♠ A K 10 9 4 2
	♡ 6 5
	♢ A J 8
	♣ 10 9
	Mr. Hymes

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2NT	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl.	Redbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding was quite normal. North might have preferred three notrump to four spades, but he felt that the suit contract was a little safer. West's Double was not the best in the world, but a set of at least 1 trick looked fairly certain. North's Redouble cannot be criticized.

The natural Opening was the club King, which Mr. Hymes won in the Dummy with the Ace. Returning to his own hand with the Ace of spades, he found that the suit was banked against him. His next lead, therefore, was a heart, which West won with the Ace. A club was cashed and Mr. Hymes allowed to ruff the third round of that suit. At this point the hand was a spread, provided West originally held three hearts and three diamonds. If he held less in either suit, the contract could not be made. Mr. Hymes, therefore, took three rounds of diamonds and then led the King of hearts. This was followed by the Queen of hearts, and Mr. Hymes ruffed. When West followed, everything was all right, because the spade 9 now put West in the lead and this unfortunate player was forced to lead up to the King-Ten tenace.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South, Dealer
Both sides vulnerable.

	♡ K J
	♢ 8
	♣ A K Q 9 6 5 4 2
♠ K Q 10 3	N	♠ 7 6 5

♣ —		♣ 3
	♠ A J 8 4
	♡ Q 7 3
	♢ J 4
	♣ J 10 8 7

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the result you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

NANCY PAGE

Lois Begins to Plan for Another Room in Her House.

BY FLORENCE La GANKE.

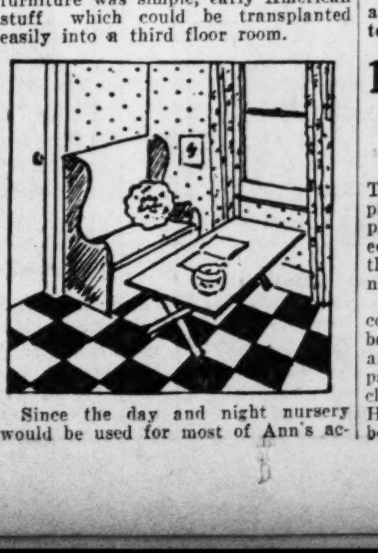
Lois was looking over her house with a speculative eye. She had a feeling that some months from now she would need an additional room. Ann was no longer a little baby but quite capable of enjoying a room of her own. Why couldn't she take the guest room, which was used so seldom and turn it into a day and night nursery?

Ann could sleep there by night and play there by day. Then she could use the small room adjoining the one she and Roger used for a new nursery or a baby's bedroom.

What did she have to move into the new room for Ann? And what would she do with the furniture now in the guest room?

Some of it could go into the attic. By insulating the third floor walls and ceiling she would have the makings of an additional room which would not be too unpleasantly hot or cold.

Thank goodness, her guest room furniture was simple, early American stuff which could be transplanted easily into a third floor room.



Since the day and night nursery would be used for most of Ann's activities Lois hoped to be able to afford a linoleum covering for the floor. That would be easy to clean.

She would get that bargain in wall paper she saw the other day—a simple cream ground polka-dotted in green.

She would try to get Roger to enamel the woodwork in green.

Then he might be persuaded to make a small table for his daughter. A simple settee could be built by their out-of-work neighborhood carpenter. She would not have the seat made into a lid that lifted for too many baby fingers might be smashed if it should happen to close unexpectedly. Rather she would provide storage space for toys in open shelves set along the wall.

Are you interested, like Lois, in layettes? Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your copy. Write Nancy Page, care The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Tomorrow Nancy Page will present another of her beautiful quilt patterns.

Ben, overwrought at ignoring his father's appeal, strode hurriedly from the cabin door. Marvie made a dive for him.

"Can I ride over with you an' see California Red?" pleaded the lad. Then, "Gee! Did you see the way your dad looked after mine got through spoutin'?"

"No—Marvie—I didn't," returned Ben, huskily.

"By golly! You should have seen him," babbled Marvie, in high glee. "He looked somethin' terrible . . . But you spoke to him, didn't you?"

"No, Marvie. I just ran," answered Ben, shortly.

"Ben, you will, though, won't you?" queried Marvie, earnestly. "After all, he's your dad."

"We've sure had hard nuts to crack in our dads, huh?" Marvie went on. "What my dad said about fishin' an' chasin' wild hosses was an eye-openin', wasn't it? Gosh! I'd have liked Ina to hear that. Sort of a dig at your dad, too, Ben."

"Indeed it—was," returned Ben, with a deep-throated laugh.

As they rounded one of the outer ranch buildings, Marvie paused mysteriously and motioned Ben to silence. "Ina's around there," he whispered. "An' I think she's been cryin'."

:-: Folly Island :-:

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, 50 miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," rows to town and sends Bart help and taxies home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived on the island 15 years but don't mix. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, died suddenly from a heart attack. Bart is left with the care of his invalid mother. The family lawyer gives Bart a letter left for him by his father, in which he confesses to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly Island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. He returns two weeks later with the legacy. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. He resolves to stay away from Folly Island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVIII

"O," she cried, looking at a clock across the room. "A quarter of twelve and I have a thousand things to do. Bart, would you have time to lunch with us?"

"But you must lunch with me," he insisted, and when her white glove went up in protest, "give me a chance to return a little of your hospitality. And we must all get together." Yes, that was imperative. Alice and her mother must be talked out of that crazy Wyattville idea. "Where shall it be?" he asked.

The Ritz? Up in the Japanese garden?"

How eagerly he agreed, fooling himself with sophistries. Yes, he must see the Bayleys again, as a matter of cold policy.

But his every nerve was pulling him toward the girl whom, against his every instinct, he had crushed out of his life.

The hot weather luncheon was nearly over. Alice, in a strawberry colored silk jacket, audacious with large pearl buttons, was eating an ice held in a tall compote. She and Bart had said very little; he had hardly taken his eyes off her. Her mother had done the talking, always away from the main point. About the taxi man, who confessed that he was an astronomer; about the theaters, the beautiful scenes in "Face the Music;" about the difficulty in finding what you want in large department stores. Mrs. Bayley was very Celtic just then, with the Celt's frivolous skill at evading the main issue.

Brooding unhappily over the girl he had lost, Bart was saying to himself, "She's more beautiful every time I see her. There's nobody like her. And how she must despise me."

But when she looked at him she smiled under her modish little hat. Had she forgiven him? Had what he had done mattered so little that she had forgotten it next day? Bart was chafing for Mrs. Bayley to be gone, to leave them alone for a while. Yet withal he was miserable with the things he must say to the girl at his side.

Now Mrs. Bayley was drawing on her gloves and it was relief when she said, "I'll have to make 57th street by two. Good-by, Bart. And thank you for a lovely lunch. We'll be back on the island next week. I hope you'll find time to come out our way. Alice, dear, don't forget your appointment with the dentist."

"No, mother."

When Mrs. Bayley was gone they resumed their seats and pretended to wait for coffee. Bart offered her a cigaret, but she refused; she gave him quite a different smile from the one she had shown before her mother.

"Bart, you're very foolish and very nice," she said, and her dimple showed.

"I'm very foolish," he mumbled.

"Sort of."

"What's this talk about Ingy Warren taking you to Wyattville?"

Innocent as the dawn, she looked across at him and said, "You wouldn't take me. I want to go."

"But that little rat, Alice!"

"Mother thinks he's nice. I think so, too." Now mischief was in her clear eyes. "Anyway, he didn't tell me that Wyattville's too expensive and snobbish for us."

His face flushed. "I suppose you think I'm a pretty cheap sort of person."

"No, nothing like that."

She weighed her chin in her hand, studying him earnestly. Wildly he was asking "What's she like?" He remembered a little breeze blowing across her island, bringing the breath of salt, the breath of honeysuckle from the clotted vines over the hill.

"Maybe you're like mother," Alice said. "You have good reasons for what you do—"

Ah, the good reasons! Bart found himself clutching at the table, holding himself back from telling her.

"Some day you'll tell me why," she said, and again he saw the love in her eyes. "You needn't worry about Ingy Warren. I'll not go to Wyattville if you don't want me to." And her eyes were saying, "I live for the times when I can see you."

"I miss not coming to Folly island," he said.

"But can't you? Not any more?"

"I'm afraid not."

"O." That was all, but he was making her understand. The tenseness of her body gave him strength to go on.

"Because—well, there's a girl in Wyattville. A girl I'm very fond of."

Why didn't Alice say anything? Why did she just sit there motionless, uncomprehending? He had an impulse to rage at her. A storm was breaking in his mind. Another man seemed to be speaking for him.

"Alice, I came here to tell you. I'm going to be married."

She just looked at him. Then, through an excited maze, he was aware of the change in her. She seemed to grow taller, a spire of pride.

"But, Alice—" Crazily he laid a hand on her arm. She shook it off and changed again to the gypsy, her face ablaze with lightning.

"Don't you ever, ever come back. Not ever. We never wanted you. Who cares for you—your advice? But I'll—"

A waiter had set a cup of coffee in front of her. In rising she knocked it over, then went rapidly out of the room.

When you must turn two faces toward life one of them is bound to be a mask; choose, if you can, which one.

Bart's true face stung as though a slap had been laid across it as his eyes followed Alice Bayley's retreating figure, straight and proud, as it disappeared in the gaudy clutter of the Japanese garden. Mechanically paying his check and giving some sort of money to the waiter, he realized dimly that what he had just said had been an insult to Alice, and she had paid him in kind. That was all right. With a dull ax he had killed the thing he loved. It was a part of the inexorable program which circumstances had laid out for him.

That was finished.

It was not until the middle of the afternoon and he was wandering vaguely back to the office when the practical side of the dilemma presented itself so vividly that he stopped in his tracks, realizing the necessity for immediate action.

Alice had forbidden him Folly island as harshly as he had forbidden it to himself. That romance was over, and with the ring of tragic finality. Yes, but the practical side . . . Ingy Warren had come to Folly island and only by the merest luck had he missed seeing Trevor Burgess' picture in the Bayley houseboat. Ingy would come again, of course, and often; other people, too, since Mrs. Bayley had opened her gate to the world. How Ingy would put two and two together, seeing that photograph, then whispering the delightful news to an eager Wyattville!

Bart Burgess, who had sworn never again to see Folly island, motored rapidly to Wyattville that afternoon, went secretly to the inlet at the foot of his mother's estate, and took out his little speedboat. Not love, but a gray necessity hurried him that fifty odd miles up the sound, around Orient Point, and into Little Peconic bay. His grim, unpleasant job urged him forward across the darkening water. This visit to Folly island was to be brief and stealthy. He had come to commit a burglary.

The stars were out, the little cove a shadow as he leaped ashore. Hen Love had released his vigilance, apparently, and there was no immediate danger except for the dogs. Now they came barking down the rocks, but when the big one, who played with Alice, got his scent he came forward licking his chops, wagging his tail apologetically. The other animals capered about. To Bart there was something pitiful in this. The very dogs on Folly island delighted in his return.

The door of the main cabin was locked, but a window sash yielded easily. It was so dark inside that Bart snapped his cigaret lighter and set the little torch on a desk near the bay window. Then carefully he took the picture from the wall, buttoned it inside his coat, and reached for his lighter. It stood beside a small book and illuminated a yellow slip of paper; partly concealed in the pages as though it had been tucked there hastily.

A telegram. Across the top edge he could read its date line—Philadelphia, July 28—about a week ago. On the lower edge were three typewritten words and a signature . . . . .age of eighteen. Hagen."

Somebody moved on the deck outside. Hastily Bart put out the lighter, stood perfect still, then saw what it was. One of the dogs was trying to get in at the open window.

So that poor job was finished. But once again in his speedboat, hurrying up the channel, Bart felt new questions crowding on him. A telegram had come a week ago at about the time when Ingy had drifted so casually into Folly island. Was there any connection? Yes. And about a week ago Mrs. Bayley had suffered a complete change of heart. Philadelphia—what did it signify?

And what did it matter? Fate had arranged if so that the Bayleys from now on were to be no more to him than a menace. And the high romance which had quickened his heart in April had closed in a rather ignoble house-breaking.

Out in the sound where the water was deep and wide Bart took the photograph from his coat and shied it far away from him into the blind darkness.

BREAK of the DAY!
By Ralph McGill

If You Are in Need of 19th-Hole Alibis, Consider These

Brand-new alibis for the 19th hole:

"Would have made a par three on that 14th green if some fool hadn't taken a shot at me."

"Why, that's nothing. Look at me reaching the third green in two and then just when I line up the putt that machine gun starts to bark. Dashed nuisance this."

The golfer is a hardy animal despite the many who "shush-shush" each whisper or move of the caddy as they prepare for a shot. But none so hardy as the Englishmen of whom Gordon Sinclair writes in his new book on India, "Foot-Loose in India."

The city of Peshawar, in the vast plains of Afghanistan, are labeled the "last great home of the marauding males who would rather fight than eat." The city of Peshawar itself is surrounded by stone walls. Beyond them are the tripled lines of electrically-charged barb wire.

And beyond that is the regulation 18-hole golf course.

Sinclair describes it as the only golf course in the world where golfers carry pistols and where there are army pill boxes with soldiers and machine guns inside and where armed guards follow one about.

Because the jolly Sikhs who hate the English, like to get off a quarter of a mile and take a pot shot at the golfers. They delight in plowing up the green with a bullet just as you line up a putt. The bullet, of course, may plow up the golfer instead. It all depends on the aim.

"It's all a bit incredible as if you were walking around in a fog," writes Sinclair. "With evil eyes looking down from some rocky lair the players, many of them women, go on pitching and putting as if it were a pleasant little course in England. Nobody, in fact, has been shot for five months. Wonderful record."

These handicaps, peculiar to Afghanistan, would indicate that the English are even a hardier race of golfers than the Americans. I am very much afraid that a great many of the usual Saturday and Sunday foursomes at the Atlanta courses would drop off a bit if there were some hairy villains taking pot shots at the players. And the sigh of machine guns poking their evil noses from concrete pill boxes here and there about the course would have a most disquieting effect.

GOLF GREENS THAT ARE RED.

It was on the way to see the Taj Mahal, the most beautiful building in the world, that Mr. Sinclair, who, by the way, is a former newspaperman, found a golf course with even greater hazards.

There are no snipers about this course, which lies beyond the ruins of Delhi, but given the choice of playing in Afghanistan or beyond Delhi I would, along with you, select the Afghanistan course and the rifles and machine guns.

The hazards at Delhi are snakes—the cobra and other vipers whose bite sometimes kills within 30 seconds. Ho! hum!

"Golf at Delhi is something to write home about," says Sinclair. "For example, you have three caddies. The total cost of the three is about 16 cents for 18 holes and you do not tip. (Well, that's something.) At 100 in the shade three caddies are necessary.

"The first carries your bag. He's the boss caddy. Usually the assistants are his sons. The first assistant caddy gets himself well up the fairway to see where the ball lands. If it goes into the rough he runs in ahead to shoo away the snakes. In case you happen to be right in the cobra belt this ball-hunting cady will have a mongoose on a string and when the ball hits the rough he sends the snake killer into the long grass first and then follows it up himself. You pay an extra two cents for the mongoose.

("I am very much afraid that the newspaper golfers of my acquaintance would break themselves hiring mongooses were they playing in Delhi. Personally I would not think of venturing out without a herd of them.")

"The third caddy," continues Sinclair, "is usually a tall, weedy Hindu who trails along holding an umbrella over your head. If a ball gets lost the three caddies put on a big league hunt because the cost of one ball will hire ten caddies for the whole day.

"The ground around Delhi is brick-red and almost red-hot. The bunkers are a slightly lighter shade of red and sometimes sport a polite little warning, 'Beware of snakes.' The green itself is just nothing. You tell it from the rest because it has a little sand sprinkled on top.

"Usually it's bad form to pick a ball out of the cup by the hand route because scorpions like the shadowy inside of the hole and the sting of the scorpion often means death.

"I watched a sort of la-de-da tennis match coming back from golf, which was momentarily interrupted by a long yellowish snake invading the court. The girl who was playing finished her volley and then said, 'Take the snake away, Joma.' So, Joma took it away. Less excitement than pouring a cup of tea."

Mr. Sinclair gives statistics to show that every seven minutes someone in India is killed by a snake.

There is no use to ask, "Vas you dere, Sharley?" because Mr. Sinclair's book is authentic and reliable. And anyhow he was there.

It is a most amazing story and it illustrates that people will have their sport—gunmen, snakes or whatnot to the contrary notwithstanding.

The writer would be willing to visit those courses only on one condition. Surrounded by my herd of faithful mongoose I would go to watch Mr. Morgan Blake and Mr. Jimmy Burns, of the afternoons, play a twosome on those courses. Or perhaps to witness a tournament of the A. W. G. A. over the one where snakes are found. Imagine all the screams!

ALLIGATORS AND FISHING.

Once, when the Crackers trained at Douglas, Ga., Mr. Fred Ricketson, the newspaper publisher, took your correspondent fishing at a small lake a few miles from Douglas.

As we sat on the bank fishing Mr. Ricketson pointed to a wet slide on the bank. "There," he said, "is where a big one has just crawled out."

"A big what has just crawled out?" asked your correspondent.

"A big alligator," said he. "There are lots of them in here."

Almost immediately we left there and went back home.

Sport is sport—but golf in Afghanistan or Delhi and fishing in Douglas lakes are out—like Hoover.

MAJOR TOURNEY IS ANNOUNCED

Announcement of the regular weekly tournament and of the first major tournament of the year, was made yesterday by the Atlanta Women's Golf Association.

The Druid Hills club will be the host to the one-day medal tournament on Tuesday. There will be a meeting of the officers of the association immediately after the tournament.

The first major competition is scheduled for the week of March 27 at the Capital City Club. Mrs. C. E. Williamson will be in charge of the tournament assisted by Mrs. Charlie Black Jr., club representative. Howard Beckett, club professional, will also assist. There is no entrance fee. Silver trophies will be given the winner and runner-up.

WES FERRELL WILL SIGN UP

GREENSBORO, N. C., March 19. (AP)—Wesley Ferrell, star pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, said here today he would accept the offer made him by the club, and would leave tomorrow for the training camp at New Orleans.

Ferrell was offered a contract for $12,000 at the beginning of negotiations, and turned it down. He said today he had agreed to sign a contract for that sum with a stipulation that he will receive a $3,000 bonus if he wins 20 games.

His brother, Rick, also a holdout, said he would start tomorrow for the St. Louis Browns' camp at West Palm Beach, Fla., expecting to reach an agreement with the management after his arrival.

MANAGER MOORE IS IN QUANDARY OVER ROOKIES

Cracker Pilot Deliberates on Six Juvenile Players To Keep.

By Jimmy Jones.

MOBILE, Ala., March 19.—Although his team has played a total of five exhibition games, Manager Charles Moore, of the Crackers, is still in a quandary as to the selection of the six rookies to be officially nominated on his roster for the opening of the Southern league season three weeks hence.

Since, as the experts say, the race will largely be rested upon the shoulders of the callow juveniles, Moore feels it highly important that he choose the most capable sextet of Class B men possible from his present layout.

Four of the rookies, Neisler, catcher; Laskowski, utility infielder; McKee and Sington, outfielders, seem pretty well agreed upon, but Moore still must evolve from his present "picklement" with a couple of the proverbial pink-cheeked pitchers who can buzz the ball past Southern league batters with sufficient skill to justify their presence on a Class A pitching staff.

PROMISING YOUNGSTERS.

Consequently there is no end of discussion here as to the names of the lucky boys who will become the Crackers Class B pitchers. There are at least a half dozen or so worthy of merit. They are Leonard Mayo, Atlanta boy who has the fortunate advantage of having pitched five years of winning ball in Class B leagues already; Ted Kleinhans, a 29-year-old southpaw from the Cardinal chain who semes to have all kinds of stuff, including speed; Hoke Long, husky righthander from the south Georgia tobacco belt; Archie Wise, young Texan; Hugh Casey, former American Legion star of Atlanta, and Irving Cohen, another righthander who had a protracted trial with the Louisville Colonels last spring.

Moore believes that from these six boys and two or three others in camp here he will be able to pick two—or possibly three—rookies who can win games on his staff.

Although the Southern league limits all rosters to 16 players, there is nothing to prevent keeping three or four rookies banging around one's park. That's where Uncle Wilbert Robinson's idea of a pitching school with some veteran coaching the boys, comes in. It is easy enough to keep two or three rookies within call, not to mention an outfielder or so, despite the very ironical fact that the Southern league keeps a rigid enforcement on the squad limit.

HAVE EDGE.

Mayo, a righthander with good speed and a nice curve ball, and Kleinhans, who has pitched winning ball in the Piedmont and other leagues, have the edge in experience on the other rookies and are undoubtedly front rank contenders now. But the others have the stuff and there is no telling what three more weeks will bring forth. Moore is a patient manager who is quick to see an embryo pitcher's ability and he is a past master at coaching them along and bringing out their latent power.

There is another exhibition game on with Washington next Wednesday and the rookies will get another chance. Moore has been keeping his Class A veterans under wraps, so to speak, being aware of what they can do. He says he will continue airing out the juveniles until the two or three most capable of serving the club are revealed.

Moore's other main problem from now on will be selecting his outfield and deciding the most valuable men from a formidable list of Joe Bonowitz, the socking Semitic; Art Weis, Sington, McKee, Red Barron, John Cummings and Jim Bryan.

The Crackers play Washington Wednesday and finish out the week with practice games. They play Minneapolis at Montgomery, Ala., on the way home and then resume activities in Atlanta with Washington, Cincinnati, St. Louis Browns and other major league clubs.

Hewitt Faces Battle Here

Whitey Hewitt, the beetle-browed Canadian who has reigned as Atlanta's arch-villain of the mat since his first appearance here in that homicidal draw with Pat O'Shocker two months ago, faces a stiff test in his meeting with Milo Steinborn, German strong man, in the feature two-hour match on Henry Weber's next card Wednesday night at the auditorium.

Sharing interest with the main event Wednesday will be the one-hour limit semi-final involving Gino Garibaldi, one of the top-notch grapplers of the day, and Tom Marvin, the Osage Indian who traveled to a draw with Paul Jones on last week's card. Marvin will doubtless rely mainly on his picturesque chin lock, but he will find the Italian one of the shiftiest and cleverest men he has ever faced. Gino is strongly reminiscent of Londos in his build and general style of wrestling, and has all the standard holds as well as some highly effective tricks of his own to be used as required.

A brisk advance sale of tickets is reported by the Piedmont Hatters and the Miner & Carter Drug store.

Moore Prepares To Catch Some

MOBILE, Ala., March 19.—While he has been very secretive about his own plans as a playing manager this year, Charley Moore, the Cracker manager, nevertheless, is busy getting himself in condition for such a role if needed.

Moore, still considered a capable catcher, has been keeping in shape warming up the young pitchers and catching batting practice. He also has been taking an occasional turn at bat to get his eye on the ball. The railbirds are prophesying that he will be ready to take over second-string receiving duties in event Eddie Phillips should need help. Right now Moore is grooming Freddie Neisler, protege of Johnny Brock and Joe Guyon, for the duties of rookie maskman.

Puzzled

Bill McKechnie, manager of the Braves, is saying "give me hits, especially behind runners, or give me immunity." The Braves are going to be better and they will be at least $60,000 improved—if Gyselman and Wright can hit like they can field. McKechnie is not sure that they will.

BOSS M'KECHNIE SEEKS HITTERS

Boston Braves May Be $60,000 Better This Season.

By Bill King,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The question is, not whether the Boston Braves are going to be better this season, there's no doubt about that, but rather are they going to be $60,000 better?

Manager Bill McKechnie would prefer to table that query. He has been gazing critically at Infielders Dick Gyselman and Al Wright, for whose services the Braves dumped $60,000 of their hard-earned 1932 money into the Missions of the Pacific Coast league.

He has learned that both of these youngsters are flawless afield, as are Rabbit Maranville, who acts younger than ever, starting his twenty-second major campaign; Bill Knothe and Handy Randy Moore, who does everything for the Braves but pitch.

Smooth fielding, however, is no triumph to McKechnie. He wants hitting, especially behind runners.

DEPENDS ON PAIR.

Therefore, Gyselman and Wright have to hit or McKechnie is going to consider the club $60,000 out. If they do, the Braves are going to have a fairly good infield, for the first time in many years, to add to their promising outfield, stronger catching department and compact pitching staff.

Since the Tribe set up the wigwam on its St. Petersburg's reservation, McKechnie has been calling upon every Brave to slug the cover off the ball every time he steps up to the plate.

Imagine his rage after the recent exhibition fiasco in which the Braves, after making nine hits, lost to the Phillies by a 5-1 count.

Pitching is also a painful subject to the Boston pilot. The staff of nine, including such dependables as Ed Brandt, Bobby Brown, Huck Betts, Ben Cantwell, Tom Zachary, is minus the usual quota of southpaws. Bill is convinced that he needs at least one more portsider, but has no idea where he is going to get him.

GOOD PITCHERS.

"Every other club in Florida is fairly overrun with good pitchers," he complained, "but let those managers hear of another one running loose and they'll break a leg getting to him."

The acquisition of Frank "Shanty" Hogan from the Giants has plugged a catching gap even bigger than that well-fed veteran and changed the department into a really powerful unit. Baldy Al Spohrer and Bill Hargrave both can stand up for a hundred games, but they hit under .270.

With the seasoning he received last season, Baxter Jordan should be able to hold off the repentant Art Shires from the first base job. Whether he hits or not, Maranville is a standout at second base, where he can outthink the Braves into a lot of ball games. Just now Wright and Gyselman appear in line for the shortstop and third base jobs, if they can hit.

MAY BE SCRAMBLE.

If they can't, Bill Knothe, Horace Ford, made a free agent by the Cincinnati Reds, and Bill "Rebel" Urbanski will scramble for those berths. Urbanski spent the first half of the training season sulking in his Perth Amboy, N. J., barber shop, but President Emil Fuchs stepped in and scared him off to St. Pete by mentioning the fines he would impose if Urbanski took too much time storing his razors for the summer.

The outfield was good last season and Bob Holland and Arthur Hunt, two more of the Coast league's sluggers, promise to make it even stronger. Wally Berger and Bob Worthington are both consistent .300 hitters and Wes Schulmerich will be one, if rival pitchers forget to throw him benders.

Beck and Carroll Star for Dodgers

MIAMI, Fla., March 19.—(AP)—Two newcomers to the Brooklyn pitching staff, Walter Beck and Owen Carroll, joined up with Van Mungo in holding the Buffalo Bisons to six hits and the Dodgers defeated the International leaguers, 4 to 1, in an exhibition game today.

Working in three-inning shifts, Beck gave one hit, Mungo two and Carroll four, two of them infield taps. Bobby Reis made two of the 11 blows the Dodgers collected off Bill Gould, Pat Caraway and Ace Elliott. Score:

Buffalo (I.) ...... 000 000 100—1 6 2

Honest Larry Gilbert Aiming Pels for Title

Called on by Fans Like Cincinnatus Summoned From Plow, Pilot Gets Team.

By Jimmy Jones.

MOBILE, Ala., March 19.—Honest Larry Gilbert, the man whose word is better than any baseball contract, hopes to get his New Orleans Pelicans back around the top of things in the Southern league this year and make the folks in his city feel much better toward the national pastime.

For many years New Orleans was one of the topnotch cities in the league from a standpoint of drawing capacity. During the prosperous era that Johnny Dobbs inaugurated and Gilbert, aided and abetted by the late Jules Heinemann, continued, the Pelicans were a power to be reckoned with annually. No one in those days dared make a conjecture on the pennant winner without seriously considering the Pelicans.

There is a sign at the entrance to the baseball grounds in New Orleans which tells the fan at a glance just how the Pelicans have finished in the first division or on top of it for the last decade or so. But last year the Pelicans fell from grace so to speak. Despite the heroic efforts of Jakie Atz, the Silver Fox of the Panhandle, the Pelicans descended into the last division and perched there for the remainder of the season.

HANDLED BUSINESS.

Larry Gilbert, the erstwhile manager, devoted all his time to business matters, in fact, he was the club's business manager, handling office matters for Charley Somers, the Pelican owner.

At the close of the 1932 season, there were loud and insistent demands for a new deal in the ball club. The fans called on Larry Gilbert, like Cincinnatus being summoned from the plow, to return to the helm of the Pelicans and get them out of the second division. Jakie Atz, poor fellow, was told to look for another job and after much looking, finally found one as chief of umpires in his original league, the Texas. The demands of economy would have forced Gilbert back to the active management of the club, no doubt, not mentioning the popular hue and cry that was being raised for his return.

Well, Gilbert is the manager again and the fans should be happy. He won a pennant for the Crescent City as recently as 1927. They have not forgotten Larry's genius at handling ball clubs. The first thing he did upon superseding his old friend, Jakie Atz, was to go out and get together a ball club.

CLEVELAND GENEROUS.

Cleveland, the mother club, has been a little generous and has sent the Pelicans some aid. Gilbert hopes to make a real ball player of Johnny Ouilliber, former Loyola boy, who is being tried in left field and at third base. The dependable Andy Harrington is back at second and George Knothe is back at short. Eddie Moore, formerly with Atlanta, and still a very capable infielder, is at third. Gilbert has two first basemen, Willis Windle and Guy Sturdy, and hasn't yet made up his mind which he will use.

Bellande, a Biloxi (Miss.) boy, is a good-looking Class B prospect for shortstop and so is "Red" Brandes, who formerly played for Charley Moore, the Atlanta manager, at Rocky Mount, N. C., and Macon, Ga. Chick Autry, former Cracker, will be first string catcher. The Pelican outfield has some power with Pete Fleming, Fitzgerald, Eddie Rose and others holding forth. Leo Moon, Denny Galehouse, Fred Johnson and Carlos Moore head an experienced pitching staff. Gilbert, like other Southern managers, is devoting his time to developing some good rookies and utility men, believing the race will be decided largely on that score.

DUCKPIN DIDOES

By Jack Troy.

The perfect "ladies man" at last has been discovered. With The Constitution doubles tournament going on in full blast all around the first floor at Blick's center, Mister Bobby Dodd sauntered over to watch the ladies bowl in the Commercial league. "My, my," said Mister Dodd, "they're a lot better than some of the men. I think I will stand right here and watch this competition."

The team of Tubby Small and John Conyers finished their block of six games Saturday afternoon with an amazing total of 1,476. That had the boys talking all right. They were saying before the finals began Saturday night that it was just a lot of wasted effort to go ahead and finish because the winning team had already bowled. That was true enough.

The Constitution's tournament, the first of its kind ever put on in the land of the brave, was a great one for the "dark horses." The handicaps were the great equalizer. And the star bowlers of the city entered in the tournament found themselves battling a hard and losing uphill battle all the way.

Messrs. William Alexander, Mike Chambers and George Griffin, the Tech coaches, came in and had a few games on their own. My, my, it was quite an affair. Mister Alexander, who is a great believer in putting the pressure on, started off with a spare. Mister Griffin countered with a spare. But Mister Chambers could not stand the pressure and watched his compatriots draw ahead.

Mister Jack Cannon, another of the Tech coaches, sauntered in and made it a foursome. It was just too bad, however, for Mister Cannon, the one-time terror of the gridiron, for his partners were already warmed up.

Mister Morgan Blake will never be the same. Had he teamed up with Mister Brad Byrd, the old 'Gator scrub and a journalistic brother, they would have been right up at the top. They wouldn't have been able to hoard any gold medals but they would have enjoyed a really respectable position among the finishers. There ain't no justice, Mister Blake complained.

There was at least one bowler for every league in the city entered in the tournament.

The Tech coaches were still firing away as The Constitution tournament ended and spotting Ralph McGill, lured him into their extra special competition. Then began the old, old business of putting the pressure on McGill, but it didn't work so well, for McGill went right ahead and knocked out a spare now and then.

It is a rather remarkable fact that although the tournament was considered won in the afternoon by the other contestants, not a single team dropped out. Each went ahead and rolled its final three games.

It is reliably reported that a posse is still out searching for the gent who remarked after noting that the Small-Conyers combination had won, "Oh, well, it's a small world after all."

Miami Aquatic Star Sets New Record

MIAMI, Fla., March 19.—(UP)—Ralph Flannagan, of Coral Gables, today established a new American record of 4 minutes 25 seconds for the 400-yard free-style swim in the Miami Biltmore Club pool. He clipped one second from the short course mark set by Arne Borg, of the Illinois A. C., in 1925.

TIGERS WIN.

BEAUMONT, Texas, March 19.—(AP)—Waiting until the last two innings before asserting their superiority, the Detroit Tigers defeated Beaumont's Texas leaguers, 9 to 5, today. Four of the runs were scored in the eighth, three resulting when Charley Gehringer drove the ball over the right field wall. The Tigers returned to San Antonio tonight to resume training.

Crackers' Game Ended by Rain

MOBILE, Ala., March 19.—A heavy thundershower ended the scheduled exhibition between New Orleans and Atlanta today in the third inning with the Pelicans leading, 1 to 0. Umpire Bill Brennan called the game at the end of the third and the teams were unable to play further. Lefty Carithers, who pitched for Atlanta, was nicked for a run in the second on a base on balls to Windle and Chick Autry's double. Carlos Moore opposed him. Carithers gave up two hits and Moore none in the three innings. New Orleans won Saturday's game, 7-1. The Crackers play Washington in Biloxi Wednesday in their next game.

Wins Again

Charley Yates vas dere in the finals of the Radium Springs open tournament yesterday at Albany, topping all amateurs with a score of 225. This, incidentally, was better than that of some of the pros, including Wild Bill Mehlhorn.

GODWIN SEEKS TITLE FRIDAY

Meets Rosenbloom in 15-Round Bout in Garden.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Two championship battles and a third which may lead to a title fight or end the aspirations of one of the ring's promising youngsters provide plenty of interest in the nation's fistic program this week.

Freddie Miller, of Cincinnati, the young southpaw who holds the recognition of the national boxing commission as featherweight champion, and Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight titleholder in the eyes of the New York state athletic commission, will stake their crowns in the week's leading battles.

Miller is slated to face Speedy Dado, Filipino scrapper, in his second title defense in less than a month at Los Angeles Tuesday. The bout is a 10-rounder. Miller turned back the bid of Baby Arizmendi, of Mexico, on February 28.

Rosenbloom, back home from a long tour of non-title exhibitions, puts his championship on the block for the second time just two weeks after he risked it against the German, Adolph Heuser. This Friday he tackles Bob Godwin, youthful Georgian, in the third championship bout in Madison Square Garden in as many weeks. They are scheduled to go the full 15-round route. In three non-title encounters, Godwin lost one decision to Smacksie and twice held him to draws. It is the first championship fight for 22-year-old Godwin.

At the Chicago stadium Wednesday, Barney Ross, the Chicago lightweight who is considered one of the outstanding challengers for Tony Canzoneri's title, goes up against Billy Petrolle, the Fargo, N. D., veteran who has often taken the role of a wrecker of championship hopes. If Ross survives this 10-rounder, he probably will be rated very near the top.

Godwin is Georgia's brightest hope for a boxing champion since Tiger Flowers, the Ebony cyclone, jauntily wore the middleweight crown on his bobbing head.

Godwin, who is a replica of Young Stribling as far as build and features are concerned, was born in Moultrie and moved to Daytona Beach with his parents when a small boy. He has relatives in Adel, where he visits frequently.

Managed by his father, Arthur Godwin, Bob has worked his way up, teaching himself and learning by actual experience.

This will be his fourth fight with Rosenbloom. Two were draws and one went to Slapsy Maxie by decision. All were non-title bouts.

In the main, it all depends on whether the machinations of the fight racket are missing, if Godwin is to have a clean-cut chance to win the title. He has the ability.

DeKalb and Fulton To Control Shows

ATLANTA STAR COMES THROUGH WITH NIFTY 225

Blond Craig Wood Plays Par-Breaking Golf To Win.

ALBANY, Ga., March 19.—(AP)—Big blond Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., who won three tournaments in a row in California some weeks ago, took first place today in the 54-hole Radium Springs open with a total score of 209.

The victory was worth $300 to Wood, already one of the leading money winners of the winter campaign. His score for the three rounds was 7 under par.

Wood put together two sub par rounds of 68 and 70 today to add to his 71 yesterday and take the lead from Horton Smith, of Chicago, the pace setter through the first and second round, who faltered in the final 18 holes and finished in third place with 213, four shots behind the winner and one to the rear of Johnny Revolta, the Menominee, Mich., youngster, whose 212 brought him second place and $200. Smith took $125.

TIE FOR FOURTH.

Harry Cooper, of Chicago, and Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., were tied for fourth with 215. Both were a stroke under the 216 par for the three rounds.

Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., followed with 217. After a 71 in the opening round yesterday, Runyan could do no better than a pair of 73's today.

Charles Yates, of Atlanta, the young Georgia state champion, was low among the amateurs with 225. He was four shots better than Bill Mehlhorn, the veteran New Yorker, who ran into an 81 on the second round which ruined his chances. Tony Manero, of Elmsford, N. Y., had 230.

After setting a course record of 66 to gain the first round lead and holding his leadership through the 36-hole mark with a par 72, Smith soared to a 75 in the last round.

WIN $50 EACH.

Cooper, MacFarlane, Runyan and Roland Hancock, of Stoneham, Mass., won $50 each.

Heavy clouds hung over the course during the afternoon round but a hard downpour held off until the finish. Strong winds swept the course and made trouble for many.

Other scores included Curdy Byrd, Birmingham, 82-78-75—235; Dan Sage, Atlanta amateur, 76-81-82—239; B. K. White, Tallahassee, Fla., amateur, 81-79-75—235; Frank Stevenson, Americus, Ga., 76-80-85—241. All others withdrew before the final round today.

ROY WILLIAMS TO HEAD LOOP

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 19.—(AP) T. D. ("Cy") Simmons, local promoter, said tonight at least six cities are expected to be represented at a meeting here tomorrow to reorganize the old South Atlantic baseball league.

Simmons said baseball men at Greenville, Spartanburg, Columbia, Macon, Augusta and Savannah were interested in the loop, and some of them already had made local arrangements and were "ready to go."

Present plans, he said, are to launch a six-club circuit, with the possibility two other cities may come in. He listed as other cities interested, Asheville, Florence, Anderson and Charleston.

He named as leaders in the reorganization movement:

Greenville, Guy Gunter; Spartanburg, Logan Drake, former big league pitcher; Columbia, Simmons himself; Macon, Roy G Williams, former president of the Southeastern league, and others; Augusta, C. C. Farr, president of the Georgia-Carolina league, and Savannah, Bobby Lamotte, a former major leaguer, and Sid Smith, of Columbia, another former big league star.

Simmons said reorganization of the "Sally" league would be completed and dates for the opening and closing of the season set. Williams, he said, is slated for president, and the season will start early in May.

Elberfeld Trains Feminine Pitcher

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 19—(AP)—Jackie Mitchell, who became the first girl player in organized baseball when she was signed by Chattanooga two years ago, has a rival worthy of the name.

She is Ann McNally, 14-year-old girl from Chickamauga, Ga., who enrolled yesterday in Kid Eberfeld's baseball school here. Ann, like Jackie, is a left-handed pitcher.

Elberfeld, who started Jackie on a career that brought her fame when she struck out Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig in an exhibition game here in '31, states Miss McNally is a more promising prospect than was Miss Mitchell when the latter got her first training under him in a baseball school in Atlanta. Ann looks forward to a professional career on the mound.

Mothproofing Effectively Done by Cathcart Allied Storage Company

PROCESS INSURES MATERIAL AGAINST RETURN OF INSECT

Elimination of Destructive Pest and Brothers Is Effected With Powerful and Deadly Poison Vapor.

Not only can household goods or clothing be entirely ridded of moth infestation, but such goods may be "mothproofed" and insured against reinfestation in future, according to W. Lawt. Inglis, president of the Cathcart Allied Storage Company, which maintains offices and storage warehouse at 134 Houston street, N. E.

Mr. Inglis points with particular emphasis to the folly of failure in these modern times to insure one's properties against these and other destructive insects, adding that the company is completely equipped to both eliminate and immunize goods.

Steuben mothproofing, a process which has been used for the last 17 years by fabric manufacturers, but has become available to the general public only within the last year, is guaranteed by moth insurance underwritten by the American Equitable Assurance, of New York, for a period of five years. The Cathcart Allied Storage Company is the only warehousing company in Georgia authorized to use this process, and is equipped with the only moth-eliminating vault of its kind in the state.

Goods to be treated for the elimination of moths are placed within this huge vault, which is of ply-metal, seamless, air-tight and equipped with squeeze locks. Close to the roof of the vault are troughs into which are poured a combination of carbon tetrachloride and ethylene dichloride. The vault is charged and the powerful vapors from this chemical combination do the work. One breath of this vapor, Mr. Inglis points, out, will kill any animal or insect.

Mr. Inglis explains that the vapors are so powerful that they will penetrate any object, in many instances apparently air-tight. So potent is its effect that it will reach and kill insects scattered through a barrel of flour, by way of illustration. A rat, inadvertently nailed up within a packing case of goods, may be killed instantaneously by this method.

Goods thus treated and left in storage are kept in rooms well sprinkled with naphthalene dust, the fumes of which are instantly fatal to any insect. Every precaution is taken against insects in other parts of the building. Water, without which insects and animals cannot live, is kept out of their possible reach, thus giving a double assurance against molestation of stored goods.

Goods from which moths have been eliminated are given the moth-proofing process. The "proofing" is applied with a power spray, which saturates the garment or fabric. It is odorless, colorless, non-inflammable and nonpoisonous to human beings, Mr. Inglis points out. The color of the fabric is unaffected by this treatment, and its potency is unaffected by subsequent dry cleanings, washing or exposure to light and air. The solution applied becomes an integral part of the fabric.

Rugs, blankets, clothing, furs, upholstery, furniture, curtains and draperies are but a few of the materials which may be thus treated.

The moth, or miller, in its adult state, is not the insect which does the actual destructive work, Mr. Inglis states, but this fact by no means lessens its indirect destructiveness. Eggs laid by the adult moth in the piling of any untreated fabric are soon hatched into worms, which gnaw their way into and eat out the under-structure of the material before winding their cocoons about them to become, in turn, the flying insect.

Thus, the Steuben mothproofing method gets at the bottom of the trouble by immunizing the material against the laying of eggs within its minute hiding places.

While the elimination of moths must be done in the Cathcart Allied Storage Company's warehouse and vault, the mothproofing may be done in the home without inconvenience to the owner. It is scientifically applied by air pressure by experienced, bonded service men. Only one application is necessary.

CURB MART SEES STRONG UPTREND

List Maintains Firm Undertone Despite Losses on Profit-Taking.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Participating in the bouyancy of financial markets generally, the curb rallied swiftly when trading was resumed last week. Part of the gain was surrendered on profit-taking, but the list maintained a firm undertone.

Resumption of business on Wednesday found a virtual absence of offerings, a situation that was quickly reflected in sharp appreciations throughout the list, especially by stocks in which floating supplies are small. All groups were strong.

Electric Bond & Share, heavily traded, soared half a dozen points. American Gas lifted briskly, while Northern States Power had a maximum rise of 7. Columbia Gas preferred was up about 6. Leading industrials were in rather active demand. Aluminum of America jumped a dozen points before realizing halted the rise. National Sugar followed the upsurge of commodity prices with a 5-point hop, while the Swift issues were up 3 or so.

In specialties, Great Atlantic & Pacific soared 20 and Quaker Oats somewhat more, though dealings in neither were large. Pan-American Airways, Dow Chemical, National Dairy "A" and a number of mining stocks also appreciated substantially. Investment trusts, helped by the increase in their portfolio values, were strong.

Oil shares moved less aggressively, but higher prices were the rule. Gulf and Humble rallied several points.

BRITISH MAY RETURN TO GOLD STANDARD

LONDON, March 19.—(UP)—The financial editor of the Sunday Express today said that the Bank of England is planning to amass 250,000,000 pounds sterling in gold, and then return to the gold standard.

He said the gold stock now on hand totaled 168,000,000 pounds sterling as compared with 120,000,000 pounds on January 1.

2 INSULL SUBSIDIARIES WILL PASS DIVIDENDS

CHICAGO, March 19.—(AP)—Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch, receivers for the Middle West Utilities Company, today made public reports of the Missouri Public Service Company and the Arkansas-Missouri Power Company, subsidiaries, and announced each would pass preferred dividends due April 1 and May 1, respectively.

Unfavorable financial conditions of the companies and decline in earnings were given as the reasons.

COTTON ADVANCES $1 TO $1.50 A BALE

Trade Concerned Over Proposals for Processing Tax on Manufacturers.

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—The week in cotton was short but exciting. Reopening on Thursday after the 10-day bank holiday suspension, the market tried in one gulp to catch up with the intervening bullish happenings in the spot situation and in goods markets.

But on the following day it suffered a chill of uncertainties on the submission to congress of the administration's agricultural relief bill, and retracted about half of the ground gained. Nevertheless, at the close of the week prices for futures ranged from $1 to $1.50 a bale above the prices of March 3.

Trade opinion mirrored uncertainty and some concern on the proposal of a virtual dictatorship of the secretary of agriculture and because of the proposed processing tax on manufacturers.

To a considerable extent, however, the declines of Friday probably reflected a weakened technical position resulting from the stampede of buyers on the preceding day. During the suspension of the futures markets, a very large business was said to have been done in cotton goods markets, and this doubtless accounted for considerable trade as well as speculative buying.

Something of a reactionary trend also developed in goods markets as evidenced by slight recessions in gray goods from the peak prices of a fortnight ago.

It was reported in trade quarters that demand for goods was stimulated by the resumption of futures trading, but there were also indications that buyers were showing reluctance to place orders on the basis of the higher prices.

At the week's close the market for print cloths was quiet with 64-60s 38 1-2-inch quoted at 3 3-8 cents a yard compared with 3 1-2 cents at the close of the previous week.

Not much additional information was received by the trade regarding acreage prospects in the belt, and the consensus is that the whole acreage question will hinge on developments in the relief legislation program.

NEW ORLEANS REOPENING SENDS PRICES UPWARD

NEW ORLEANS, March 19.—(AP) Although the cotton market remained closed during the first half of the week, due to the bank holidays, there prevailed a general impression among traders that when the market opened prices would show a sharp advance. This impression was confirmed when trading was resumed on Thursday as active trading months showed gains of 95 to 99 points over the closed 13 days previously.

This advance of about $5 a bale was based on the optimistic feeling created by the president's handling of the banking situation and the efforts to balance the budget, coupled with a belief that the steps taken presupposed mild inflation. Although a part of Thursday's advance was cut down by profit-taking, the net advance on Thursday was 80 points, or $4 a bale.

A decidedly reactionary tendency developed Friday, due mainly to a bearish view taken of the farm relief measure introduced in congress and the advance of the previous day was reduced one-half by a decline of 40 points. Trading, which had been very active on Thursday, decreased Friday and was rather quiet during the short session of Saturday. Net gain for the week was about 40 points.

Demand for spots, which had been negligible during the holiday period, revived somewhat during the closing days of the week, coming mainly from domestic mills. The export demand was small and the exports for the week were decidedly light, as the unsettlement of foreign exchange has induced shippers to hold off. The total exports for the season are now running 450,000 bales behind last season.

Atlanta Envelope Company Aids in Stationery Savings

That it is frequently possible to make worthwhile savings in envelope costs by buying direct from the manufacturer was pointed out yesterday by S. Guthman, president of the Atlanta Envelope Company, 505-11 Stewart avenue, S. W.

"Some companies," stated Mr. Guthman, "buy only one type of envelope for all types of correspondence and even for advertising mailings. Since this one envelope is used in many cases where fine stationery is required, it means that a rather expensive envelope must be bought in order to create the impression a company desires. On much of the mail that leaves the average office, such an expensive envelope is not required. By buying two different styles of envelopes, the less expensive to be used for less important mail, a considerable saving can be made with no sacrifice of prestige."

Still another saving which involves postage as well as envelope costs was mentioned by Mr. Guthman. It is a special type of envelope known as the postage-saver. While it cannot be used for correspondence purposes, it can be used for advertising mailings, form letters, folders and the like. Mailings of this type are entitled to third class postage rates of 1 cent or 1 1-2 cent. A company doing a great deal of mailing can use a postage-saver envelope very advantageously.

"Our representatives," Mr. Guthman stated, "are all thoroughly versed in mailing practices and their long experience frequently enables them to offer valuable suggestions to our customers. We are glad to discuss a customer's needs with him entirely without obligation on his part."

OFFICIALS DISCUSS STUDEBAKER PLANS

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 19.—(AP)—In closed conference, officials today discussed future plans for the Studebaker Corporation, pioneer automobile manufacturing concern, which was placed in friendly receivership yesterday.

Petition for receivership was filed by the Edwards Iron Works, Inc., local auto body building company which had a claim of $6,229. Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick appointed as conservators Paul G. Hoffman and H. S. Vance, vice presidents of the Studebaker concern, and A. G. Dean, president of the White Motor Company, of Cleveland.

Present at the conference of receivers was A. R. Erskine, president of the corporation, who arrived from New York city this morning. None of the conferees would make any statement concerning today's discussion.

Vance said such a statement would be deferred pending the arrival of Dean from Cleveland. He expressed conviction, however, that the corporation's factories, closed during the banking holiday, would resume production Tuesday.

Receivers issued a statement explaining the receivership action sprang from legal entanglements in connection with the proposed merger of the Studebaker Corporation with the White Company.

The statement said that six months ago officials of the two companies agreed on a merger as an economy move and that 95 per cent of the White stock was turned in.

In recent months, however, the statement said, 3 per cent of the stockholders threatened litigation unless they were paid more for their stock than Studebaker offered.

Studebaker Corporation issued $14,000,000 of notes in connection with the merger.

Directors of the corporation asserted it was in good financial shape.

BONDS REGISTER SWEEPING GAINS

Administration Policies Continue To Influence Investment Improvement.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—It was a short but merry week for the bond market, back from the lengthy banking holidays, and prices on Wednesday and Thursday recorded the most sweeping gains of many years.

While business and industry showed little change, and 1932 earnings statements continued to make quite unpleasant reading, the speedy action of the administration in returning sound banks to normal operations brought an almost overnight reversal of investment sentiment.

At the same time, millions of dollars of hoarded gold returned to the vaults of the Federal Reserve system, the currency tide flowed back into the reopened banks, money rates began to slide and institutions forced to liquidate their highest grade portfolios prior to the national banking suspension came in with a rush, when cash was no longer at so great a premium, to retrieve their sold-out holdings.

United States government securities led the revival with a rebound of 1 to more than 3 points on Wednesday, almost repeated this spurt Thursday and displayed further accumulation at steadily rising quotations during the remainder of the week. "Gilt-edge" utilities, rails and industrials quickly followed with gains ranging from 1 to 10 or more points. There was considerable profit-taking on Friday and Saturday, but most categories continued to maintain a firm undertone.

Little attention was paid by traders and investors to "inflation" talk, most bankers believing that the administration would not deviate from its announced "adequate but sound" money policy. The softening of foreign exchanges was also viewed as a sign that Europe did not take seriously the rumors of dollar depreciation.

The foreign department was optimistic at the reopening of the market, but irregular trends appeared later in the week. The German group came into supply at substantial declines, reflecting uncertainties connected with the policies which may be adopted by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, new president of the Reichsbank. Japanese bonds, previously under pressure, recovered a number of points following the empire's military successes in Jehol.

COTTON GOODS SALES DROP DURING WEEK

NEW YORK March 19.—We believe that today the country at large is facing the future with a far greater degree of confidence than at any time since the depression began. The president has established an "all time record" in the decisive handling of momentous measures certain to profoundly influence the trend of American economic affairs, and the benefits sure to accrue from this restoration of confidence cannot be overestimated. Of major importance is the enactment of President Roosevelt's economy bill, and of particular interest to the textile industry is the new proposed emergency agricultural relief bill. We believe the original Smith bill is the best proposal as to cotton and allied interests. It appears that the best to be had now is the inclusion of the main provisions of this bill in the administration's agricultural relief program. The removal, as a threat over the cotton market, of some 3,000,000 bales of cotton, should be particularly beneficial to our industry. The further reduction, both in seed loans and loans through the regional agricultural bank, should bring about a reduction in acreage in addition to that provided in the Smith bill.

The opening of the New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges, and the Chicago grain market brought a rush of buying orders. Cotton closed up about $2.50 a bale, while other farm commodities quickly jumped to the limits placed, namely, wheat 5 cents, corn 2 cents, oats 3 cents and rye 4 cents per bushel, at which points trading automatically stopped. Most of the cotton trading was confined to the May and July positions, although there was good business in the other months.

The volume of cotton cloth sold this week has been much less than in the previous one, but this was to be expected in view of the large volume placed. While prices in some instances were lower, there were others which showed slight advances after the opening of the cotton market Thursday. Good sales were made in colored goods as well as any other special fabrics and the market as a whole did very well.

Lumber Moves North For Beer Kegs, Crates

CONFIDENCE RISES IN STEEL CIRCLES

Greatly Improved Tone Is Noted Also in Iron Market During Week.

CLEVELAND, March 19.—(AP)—A strong feeling in industrial circles that government and industry had passed successfully through a crucial test was reflected in the weekly review today of the magazine Steel.

A greatly improved tone in iron and steel markets was noted, although it also was remarked that steel makers were "under no delusion as to the obstacles still ahead." It was added, however:

"Breaking down of the barriers to trade with the freer flow of credit, currency and checks, deflation of government costs and rising grain and other commodity and security values is imparting a greatly improved tone."

"This surge of confidence," the magazine said, "has not yet resulted in an impressive increase in iron and steel consumption, though it is responsible for releasing practically all tonnage suspended recently; it is impelling consumers to seek protection farther ahead than at any time during the depression, and it is setting in motion mechanism certain to generate larger steel requirements. . . .

"There is a strong feeling that government and industry have passed successfully through a crucial test, and are gaining fresh vitality for the grind of recovery.

"To some extent the trend is already manifest in steel-making operations, which in the week ended March 18 recovered all the ground lost in the previous week, and rebounded to 15 per cent (of normal). Further expansion seems assured for this week for the reason reinstatement of suspended automotive requirements came too late to affect the rate last week.

"Except in scrap, up 50 cents at Youngstown, no price increases are reported, but in practically every product the market is stronger with broader inquiry, so far foward as October 1 in some instances. . . .

"In a more definite degree, the bouyant note is apparent in demand for raw materials. A merchant furnace interest at Cleveland has booked 5,000 tons of pig iron and 10,000 tons are under negotiation there. The volume of current pig iron business at Chicago is the largest in 18 months, scrap is more active in all markets.

"A greater diversity of orders from miscellaneous manufacturing groups is considered a portent of gradually mounting steel consumption. . . .

"All of steel's price composites are unchanged this week; iron and steel remaining $28.35; finished steel $46.50, and steel works scrap $6.46."

DISTINCT UPTURN SEEN IN BUSINESS AS BANKS REOPEN

Dealers in Raw and Finished Materials Report a Notable Revival in Buyers' Interest.

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—Business trends showed distinct signs of turning up again toward the end of this week, on the wave of high hopes set in motion by restoration of banking facilities and confidence.

Statistics appearing during the week, mostly covering the preceding week, fell in the nation-wide banking holiday and naturally showed sharp recessions in such items as freight car loadings.

While there was little statistical evidence toward the close of the week that any important part of the ground lost since mid-February had been regained, dealers in both raw materials and finished goods widely reported a revival of buyers' interest.

Steel ingot production, having risen in the earlier weeks of the year to above 20 per cent of capacity, fell back below 15 per cent early this week, according to Iron Age, but the survey by the publication Steel appearing a few days later, said that the ground lost in the week ended March 11 had been regained.

Manufacturers in a number of localities, having curtailed operations during the banking holiday, were reported resuming, or planning to step up production in the coming week. Such reports came particularly from automotive centers.

An uplift in commodity prices, particularly with the resumption of trading in futures markets, also had a stimulating effect upon sentiment.

The rise in the commodity futures markets was interrupted toward the end of the week, in part by uncertainty, or actual misgivings in some quarters, over the proposed farm relief measure, although it was felt that a clearer understanding of the farm aid plans would shortly be afforded.

2 Straus Receivers Submit Resignations

NEW YORK, March 19.—(AP)—After finding S. W. Straus & Co., Inc., was "simply a shell," they said, with liquid assets of only $29,000, Robert Moses and William M. Calder have resigned as receivers for the concern.

The resignation was sent to Supreme Court Justice Charles C. Lockwood, who announced today he had appointed Louis F. Schultze, a West Point graduate, as the new receiver. Schultze posted a $50,000 bond and took charge of the company.

HUGE ORDERS PLACED FOR CAST IRON PIPE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 19.—(AP)—Birmingham cast iron pipe concerns announced today receipt of orders for more than 5,000 tons of pipe. Announcement also was made that bids are in on several thousand additional tons in the west and midwest.

Orders announced today included 3,500 tons from Los Angeles, 1,200 tons from San Francisco and small orders from Corpus Christi, Texas, and Freeport, La.

The Gulf States paper mill at Tuscaloosa, Ala., resumed operations today, calling 500 men back to work.

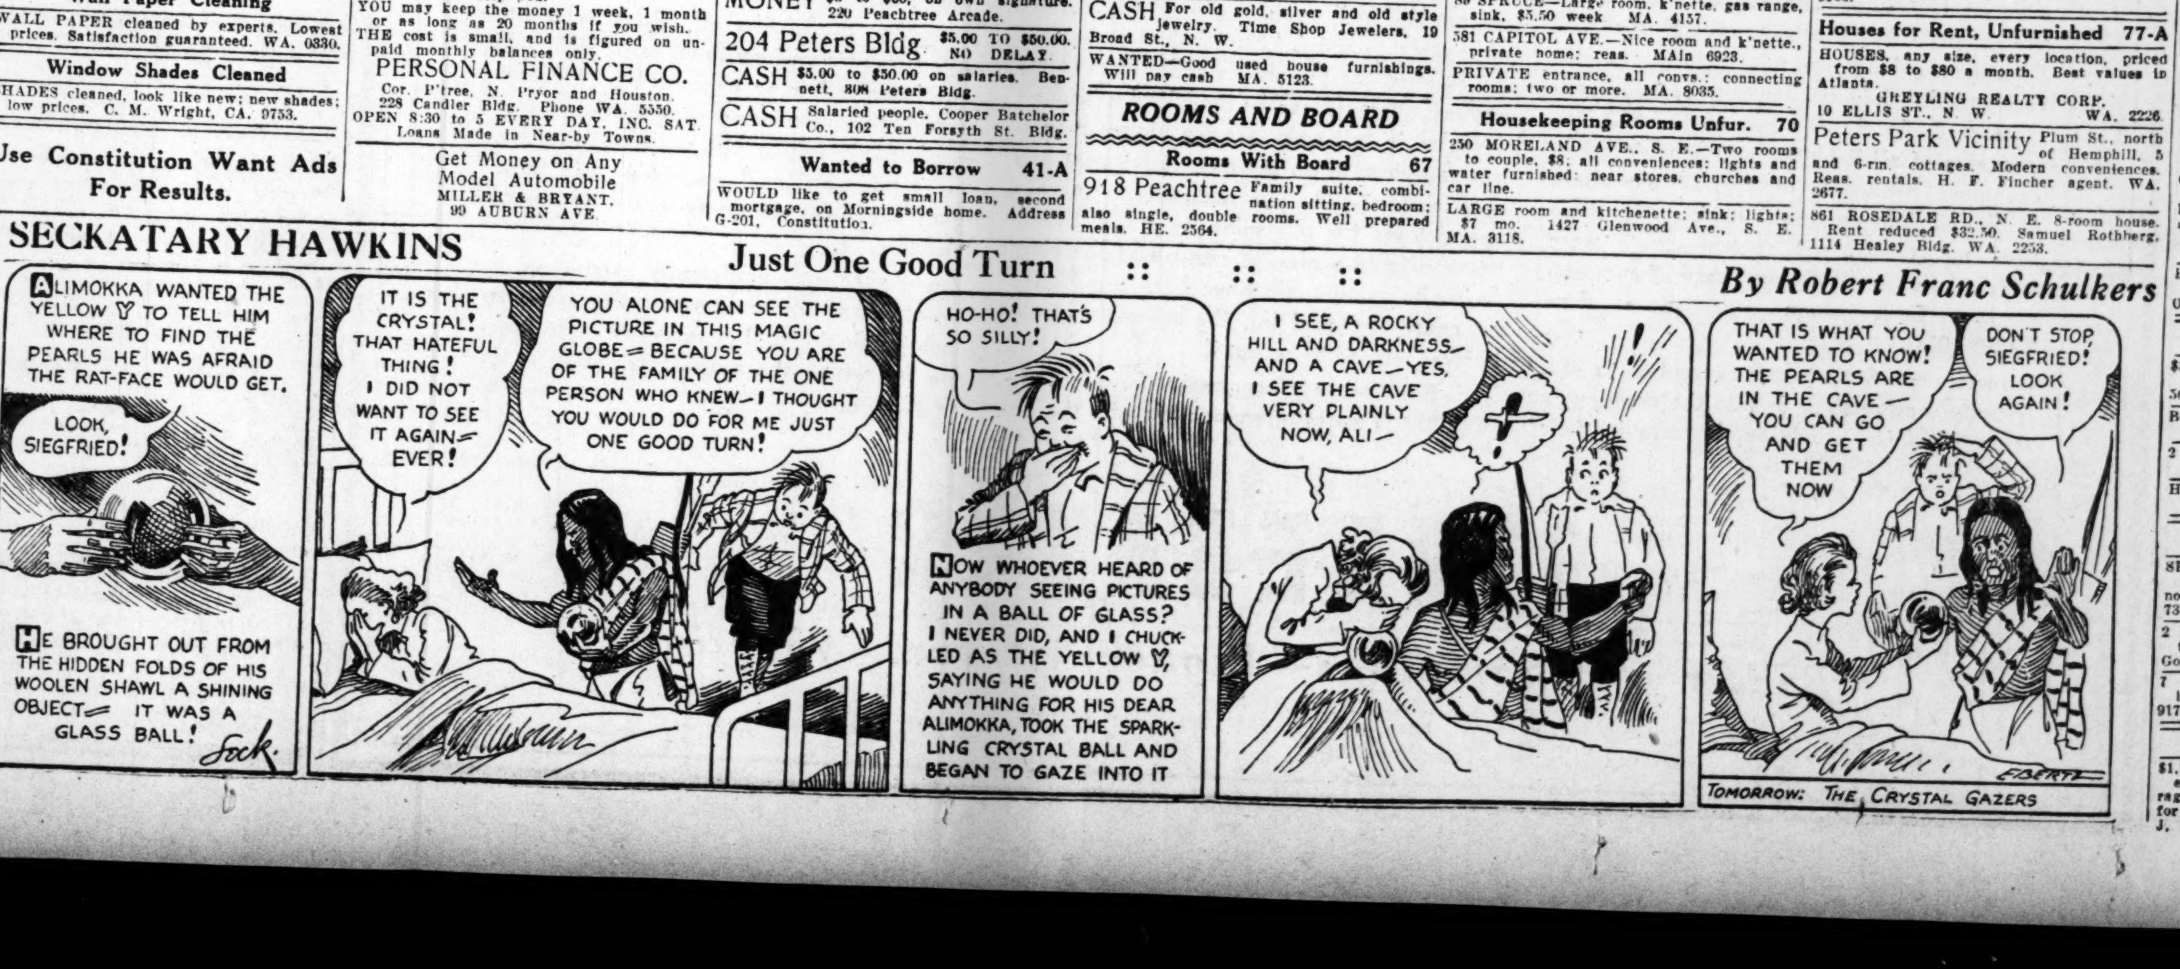
Just One Good Turn

By Robert Franc Schulkers



ALIMOKKA WANTED THE YELLOW Y TO TELL HIM WHERE TO FIND THE PEARLS HE WAS AFRAID THE RAT-FACE WOULD GET.
LOOK, SIEGFRIED!
HE BROUGHT OUT FROM THE HIDDEN FOLDS OF HIS WOOLEN SHAWL A SHINING OBJECT— IT WAS A GLASS BALL!
Sock.
IT IS THE CRYSTAL! THAT HATEFUL THING! I DID NOT WANT TO SEE IT AGAIN— EVER!
YOU ALONE CAN SEE THE PICTURE IN THIS MAGIC GLOBE— BECAUSE YOU ARE OF THE FAMILY OF THE ONE PERSON WHO KNEW— I THOUGHT YOU WOULD DO FOR ME JUST ONE GOOD TURN!
HO-HO! THAT'S SO SILLY!
NOW WHOEVER HEARD OF ANYBODY SEEING PICTURES IN A BALL OF GLASS? I NEVER DID, AND I CHUCKLED AS THE YELLOW Y, SAYING HE WOULD DO ANYTHING FOR HIS DEAR ALIMOKKA, TOOK THE SPARKLING CRYSTAL BALL AND BEGAN TO GAZE INTO IT
I SEE, A ROCKY HILL AND DARKNESS AND A CAVE—YES, I SEE THE CAVE VERY PLAINLY NOW, ALI—
THAT IS WHAT YOU WANTED TO KNOW! THE PEARLS ARE IN THE CAVE— YOU CAN GO AND GET THEM NOW
DON'T STOP, SIEGFRIED! LOOK AGAIN!

Allen To Issue Call For Beer Tax Session

BATON ROUGE, La., March 19. (AP)—Governor O. K. Allen tonight set assembly of a special session of the Louisiana legislature for 10 o'clock tomorrow night for repeal of the Hood prohibition law and the fixing of a $5 per barrel state tax on beer.

The governor said his formal call for a special legislative session would be issued later.

The proposed tax of $5 a barrel on beer would yield the state about $1,500,000 a year, Governor Allen said, basing his estimate on a calculated sale of 300,000 barrels of beer annually.

TARZAN THE UNTAMED No. 235

REX MAXON

For several days Lieutenant Cecil and Olga, the spy, followed Tarzan's lead. Exhausted as they were, with the exception of the ape-man, they realized they must keep on at all costs. They MUST find a spot where they could ascend the precipitous side of the gorge to the floor of the plateau above. But no indication of any escape appeared.

There were places where the ape-man alone might have negotiated the ascent. But powerful and agile as was Tarzan, he dared not venture carrying either man or girl aloft. Fatigue and the dangerous hardships of the past weeks were telling on the two Europeans. For half a day the ape-man had been either carrying or supporting the British lieutenant.

Now, to his dismay, he saw that the girl, too, was faltering. "It is no use," she said, finally, "I can go no further." "Courage," replied Tarzan; "you are not dead nor is the lieutenant nor myself. Until then we should plan only upon continuing to live. We rest here awhile. When you are stronger we will push on."

It was then that Tarzan suddenly motioned the others to silence, and listened. For a minute he stood motionless, his keen ears acutely receptive to sounds so faintly distant that neither man nor girl detected the slightest break in the utter and death-like silence of the gorge. Those minutes seemed like eternity to the girl, wondering what was coming.

PORTRAIT OF LAMAR, RENOWNED JURIST, SHOWN AT MUSEUM

Two exhibitions opened at the High museum Sunday, including a portrait of the late Justice Joseph Rucker Lamar, of the United States supreme court, it was announced by L. P. Skidmore, the director.

This portrait, which will be shown for only a few days, will be hung in the library of the University of Georgia. It was painted by Julian Lamar, a native of Augusta, who also painted portraits of Major General Slayden for West Point; President Hibben for Princeton and Henry S. Osborne for the Museum of Natural History.

Another exhibit consists of four Japanese masks used by native actors. These were lent to the museum by Miss Emma Eve Gardner, a missionary here on a furlough, and were obtained by Miss Cornelia Cunningham, Atlanta artist.

Knoxville Man Killed When Plane Crashes

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Betty Lund Steele, famous stunt flyer, suffered a fractured jaw and two passengers were injured, one probably fatally, when her plane crashed at McGhee-Tyson airport here today where she was putting on a stunt program.

Barney Forester, 27, Knoxville Journal office boy, suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries from which he later died. Wallace Boullineaux, also a Journal employe, was injured slightly.

Mrs. Steele is the former wife of the late flyer, Freddie Lund, who was killed at Lexington, Ky., about two years ago. She holds several national records for women flyers.

Her husband is Blue Steele, orchestra leader. They flew here Saturday from Atlanta.

LUMPKIN MAN EXPLAINS FULTON 'LOCAL BILL'

Questions which were raised when Representative Fred Jones, of Lumpkin county, introduced a bill to have the state refund an Atlanta bonding firm money lost on the escape of a Lumpkin county convict, who was later recaptured, were settled Sunday when it was revealed that a Lumpkin county bonding firm—having as correspondent the Atlanta company—was the real loser. It was at first thought Jones had introduced a Fulton county "local bill." The measure passed both houses and was signed by the governor, attracting attention as a "local bill" because it appeared to have been put forward by a representative of another county.

STUDEBAKER CARRIES ON

Receivership proceedings find world's oldest vehicle manufacturer with assets exceeding liabilities by over $70,000,000

FACTS LEADING TO COURT ACTION REVEALED

STUDEBAKER is still Studebaker in spirit, scope and service.

There has been no change, except for the better, in the policies and program of the historic Studebaker institution.

And Studebaker is fortunate that the men appointed to administer its affairs are H. S. Vance, Vice President of The Studebaker Corporation; Paul G. Hoffman, Vice President of The Studebaker Corporation, and A. G. Bean, President of The White Motor Company—men schooled in the traditions which have given Studebaker its world-wide prestige.

The great South Bend plants of Studebaker, closed since the announcement of the bank moratorium, reopen Tuesday, March 21, under the direction of these seasoned automotive executives.

The New Strength of Studebaker.

The Studebaker Corporation and its subsidiaries (including The White Motor Company and The Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company, which are not included in this receivership) had on January 1, 1933, excluding good-will, net assets of $77,622,293 in excess of all liabilities and a book value, excluding good-will, of $26.22 per share of Studebaker common stock. Of these total net assets, net current assets were $21,781,243 or $8.84 per share of common stock. Cash alone was more than $9,000,000.

Directors of Studebaker consented to the friendly receivership, despite the company's strong financial condition, because in their opinion the best interests of Studebaker would be protected until certain legal entanglements in connection with the proposed merger with The White Motor Company are adjusted.

The Studebaker-White Merger.

Six months ago it was decided unanimously by the respective boards of directors of The Studebaker Corporation and The White Motor Company, that many economies and commercial advantages would result from a merger. A plan looking toward this merger was submitted to the stockholders of The White Motor Company. Within a short time 95 per cent of the White stock was turned in, manifesting the almost unanimous approval of White stockholders.

In recent months, however, holders of approximately 3 per cent of the White stock have threatened litigation against the merger unless their stock were purchased at a price which Studebaker directors felt to be unreasonable and upon terms which it was impossible to meet. Studebaker recognizes the right of the minority stockholders to set any price they please on their White stock—even, as in this case, a price higher than it has commanded on the open market at any time since 1929. In addition to private negotiations for this minority stock, Studebaker offered a plan of consolidation under which its value could have been established by court appraisal but the minority stockholders refused to accept it.

The Studebaker Corporation issued $14,900,000 in notes in connection with the acquisition of the assets of The White Motor Company. As a result of the attitude of the small minority group, these assets of White have not yet been merged with those of Studebaker. Furthermore, the terms under which these notes were issued have made it impossible, in the present banking situation, for Studebaker to secure its customary financial accommodations.

Studebaker's competitive position in the industry has been improving steadily. During each of the past four years Studebaker-built cars have secured a larger proportion of total registrations than in the previous year. The four lines of trucks — White, Pierce-Arrow, Studebaker and Indiana—now sold by The White Company, showed a larger dollar volume last year than any competing company except Ford and Chevrolet. With these four lines of trucks, White branches made a better showing in January, 1933, than in January, 1932, when general conditions were much better.

There will be no variation whatsoever in the quality of Studebaker and Rockne workmanship. Studebaker and Rockne automotive products will continue to be built without interruption or change, by Studebaker men. This pioneering organization has already faced and fought and triumphed over more "depressions," wars and "bad times" than any other company in the automobile business.

Studebaker now confidently carries on, assured that it can continue to offer the American public the kind of automobiles and service for which the name Studebaker is distinguished.
